U.S. WANTS TO SETTLE ALIEN PATENT SUITS

Will Try Several Test Cases and Parties Agree to Abide by Results

RESULT OF WORLD WAR

Royalties in Treasury but Cannot Be Distributed Until Agreement Is Reached

COPYRIGHT, 1927 POST PUB. CO.

Washington—Definite effort to lay the last of the war ghosts and bring before the courts the multitude of lawsuits over former enemy-owned patents is at last under way. Royalties for these patents taken over from their German and Austrian owners during the war run into high figures.

Suits are pending in so many jurisdictions that unless final adjudication of the questions involved is speeded up, many years may elapse before all are settled. Realizing the many difficulties in these cases, the department of justice has given its consent to a movement to obtain an agreement to abide by the outcome of the suits. The four suits now pending in the United States district court for Delaware, are believed to embrace all the ramifications of the questions.

If sufficient arguments are secured during the next few weeks, trial of all the similar suits in the other federal courts of the country will be postponed and the test cases will be heard this fall at Wilmington and then pushed through to the supreme court.

MANY CHEMICAL PROCESSES

Hundreds of patents for chemical processes and mechanical devices are concerned in these law suits. The present ownership of these patents is not involved and such cases will have no influence apparently upon what congress eventually does about returning alien property seized during the war.

The main question is: Who is entitled to the royalties paid for the use of these patents at various periods?

In the original trading-with-the-enemy act, Congress provided that the president might issue licenses for the use of patents, trade marks, and copyright owned by enemy aliens. There were several thousands of registrations of this character. Use of some of the patents was vital to the successful prosecution of the war. The American chemical industry, in particular, was an infant ten years ago. Most of the patents were German-owned.

TRADE BODY ACTS

President Wilson designated the Federal Trade commission as his agent in issuing licenses for the use of these patents. The applicant was given a hearing and the commission fixed a fee, or royalty, for the use of the patent. The law provided that the owner of the patent, if dissatisfied with the royalty, might file suit, within one year from the official termination of the war, in any federal district court, where the licensee had residence. Many such licenses were granted, all non-exclusive.

Then congress amended the law and provided for seizure of enemy property by the government, with the alien property custodian empowered to sell or otherwise dispose of it. Under the amendment, many patents, previously licensed, were sold but the licenses remained valid. Most of the chemical patents were purchased by the Chemical Foundation Inc., organized for the purpose, and this sale has been the object of a suit by the Federal government itself, under a later administration, the Foundation winning through to the supreme court.

SCORE OF SUITS FILED

Scores of suits were filed in various federal courts involving the amount of royalties under the original law. Others have been filed as to ownership of the royalties at various periods, during the original licensing, while the patents were held by the alien property custodian under seizure, and after sale by that official.

The accumulated royalties are in the treasury but cannot be distributed until the principles underlying all of these suits have been determined judicially and even then accounting difficulties may be expected in some instances. Hence the efforts to agree to abide by the final decisions in the selected cases.

33,000 VOLTS JOLT HARDY PAINTER OFF THIRTY FOOT LADDER

Donald Kranzusch, 22, narrowly escaped fatal injury Monday afternoon when he received a shock of 33,000 volts and fell 30 feet from a ladder on which he was standing while painting near transformers at the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co. power plant.

Kranzusch landed on his head and shoulder but suffered only minor injuries.

According to his recollection of the accident, Kranzusch was painting near a transformer when he was shocked and thrown to the ground. He was taken in an ambulance to the hospital where his condition was reported as very favorable Tuesday noon.

2 LEADING SENATORS WANT EXTRA SESSION

Smoot and Harrison Think Flood Control and Tax Legislation Need Attention

Washington—(AP)—Because of the burden of flood control and tax legislation, two leading senators of opposite political alignments feel President Coolidge should call congress into extra session.

The senators, Smoot, Republican, Utah, and Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi both believe the move is essential so congress can get under way the complicated and lengthy task of enacting the tax bill earlier than usual and then turn to the important problem of Mississippi river flood control.

The Mississippian declared the extra session should commence Oct. 1, while Smoot proposed the earlier assembly between Oct. 15 and Nov. 1.

The two senators disagreed on the amount of tax reduction.

Smoot, who is chairman of the senate finance committee, declared the reduction should reach $300,000,000 and become ceffctive by March 15, before the next tax returns are filed. Senator Harrison proposed a cut of $500,000,000, with reductions including the lopping off of corporation levies and surtaxes on medium sized incomes.

FIRE SHOTS AT KLANSMEN MEETING AT DES MOINES

Des Moines—(AP)—A statement that more than 25 shots were fired in the direction of a group of Ku Klux Klan members encamped near the state fair grounds here Monday night was made by officials of the organization who are holding a state meeting here Tuesday.

Klansmen from Burlington, Muscatine, Davenport, Boone and other cities were in the group.

The officials said the campers were discussing matters to come before Tuesday's meeting when shots were fired from a distance. Guards stationed about the camp were said to have returned the fire. Whether anyone was injured could not be learned. More than 100 klansmen were in the camping plot when the firing occurred it was said.

LIGHT-HEAVY CHAMPION GETS INTO BIGGER CLASS

New York — (AP) — Because of his claim that he no longer can make the class weight of 175 pounds, Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., light-heavyweight champion for the past year, Tuesday relinquished the title and was given permission by the state athletic commission to fight as a full fledged heavyweight.

Pete Reilly, Delaney's manager emerged from the commission meeting to announce the fighter's action which he added, paved the way for Delayen to fight Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight at the Yankee stadium on Aug. 11 under the promotion of Tex Rickard. Both fighters already have come to terms with Rickard for the match.

Mike McTigue, who was to have fought Delaney, Aug. 11, for the light-heavyweight title, will be recognized by the commission, if he defeats some "worthy opponent" this summer, according to Reilly and Jimmy Johnston. McTigue's manager.

Peasants Mix With Elite At Wedding Of Bud Stillman And Lena Wilson

Latuque, Quebec— (AP) —La Tuque was early astir Tuesday, the wedding day of Lena Wilson, the 18-year-old daughter of humble parents who by her engagement to "Bud" Stillman has become the town's most famous resident.

Thirty miles away everything was in readiness for the ceremony Tuesday afternoon at the Grand Anse home of James A. Stillman, New York banker and Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, parents of the bridegroom.

While waiting for the trucks which will carry them to Grand Anse to play in competition with native violin and accordian players, kiltie clad members of the Royal Highlanderes band paraded the streets. A spirit of festivity and excitement prevailed.

A four-foot wedding cake, spoken of with awe by neighborhood cooks, was reported a success, the work of the skillful hands of the chef from the Stillman yacht.

Rumors of discord among the families of the bride and bridegroom had passed with the arrival of the wedding day.

Bright blue skies made the weather prospect pleasing and local observers said rain was only a remote possibility.

Boats, buggies, motor cars, in fact almost every conceivable mode of conveyance, brought the wedding guests, who came from all points in the Three River district, garbed in their Sunday best.

A big boat from Grand Piles started early Tuesday morning up the St. Maurice river to La Tugue, picking up 200 guests along the banks.

But of even more interest to the river folks was their native musicians

British Newspaper Says Ambassador Has Been Instructed to Lodge Protest

London —(AP)— The origin of the statement printed in the Morning Post and Daily Telegraph that Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to the United States, has been instructed to protest against the alleged unfairness of the American press in discussing the British position at the Geneva naval conference, was somewhat of a mystery Tuesday.

Officials at the foreign office denied that Sir Esme had been instructed to lodge an official protest at Washington. They furthermore stated that in their opinion the tone of the American press has shown a decided improvement recently and there now seems to be a better understanding of the British position in the United States.

It was uncertain Tuesday when W. C. Bridgeman, chief of the British delegation and his associates will return to Geneva.

WAIT FOR BRITISH

Geneva —(AP)— The American delegation to the tri-partite naval conference sent a letter to the British delegation Thursday asking for information as to when W. C. Bridgeman and Lord Cecil, who are now in London, are expected to return to Geneva to resume the conference.

It appears that Mr. Bridgeman informed Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the American delegation before departing for London last week, that he expected to start back on Sunday last, but since then no word has been received here from the British.

In the meantime, the delegations in Geneva have remained expectantly at their desks and it is understood that the American secretary of state, Frank B. Kellogg, is remaining in Washington to keep in touch with the situation.

GOVERNMENT TO SPEAK

London —(AP)— The British government will make a statement in the house of commons regarding the tri-partite naval negotiations Wednesday or Thursday, Winston Churchill chancellor of the Exchequer told the house Tuesday.

Churchill said that the government desired to make the statement Wednesday if possible but could not say definitely whether it could be made then or postponed until Thursday. "But on one of the other of the two days, it is the intention of the government to offer a statement to the house," he concluded.

200 ATTEND MADISON HEARING ON CURTAINS

Madison—(AP)—With more than 200 persons in attendance, a hearing to consider the use of cab curtains on railway locomotives for the protection of the health of engineers and firemen continued here Tuesday.

Attended by men from Iowa, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, North and South Dakota as well as Wisconsin, the hearing centers around the complaint made by the Wisconsin railroad commission to the interstate commission. When the commission asked the carriers in the state to equip cabs with curtains, the carriers refused to comply. The railroad commission then asked the interstate commerce commission to prescribe regulations for such equipment, and to enforce such provisions.

The hearing is expected to last for several days and the decision may be further delayed, according to commission members. Other requests for hearings on the question have been received from various states.

The Wisconsin commission made the original complaint after the United States supreme court had overruled a state law which allowed the railroad commission to act.

LONE AMERICAN PUTS ON PATRIOTIC SHOW

Buenos Aires — (AP) — An unknown American staged a patriotic one-man ceremony Monday before the statue of George Washington in Palermo gardens, the base of which was shattered by a bomb several days ago "to vindicate" as he explained, "the memory of the first American president."

After depositing a large floral tribute entwined with the colors of the United States and Argentina, the man solemnly lifted his voice in the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner." A number of persons out for an afternoon stroll in the park surrounded the man and with heads uncovered during the ceremony, upon the completion of which, the stranger retired quietly in an automobile.

GOVERNORS TALK ON PURITY OF BALLOT

Annual Gathering of State Heads Discuss Elections and Flood Control

Mackinac Island, Mich.—(AP)—Two national problems came in for consideration Tuesday by the nineteenth annual governors' conference, the reoccuring floods in the Mississippi river valley and the purity of the ballot.

Governir Martineau, Arkansas, one of the states hardest hit by the recent flood, gave his fellow executives the benefit of his long intensive study of the river situation and Governor Sam Baker, Missouri, talked on "purity of the ballot and election expenses."

I want to impress on you that Mississippi floods can and should be controlled and that this is a national responsibility, expense of which should be borne entirely by the federal government," said Governor Martineau.

"Secretary Hoover tells us the Mississippi can be controlled by adoption of a proper engineering plan. Engineers estimate that this plan when put into operation will not cost more than the Panama canal.

"The surplus revenue for the present year would probably take care of all means neccessary to bring about flood prevention."

Governor Baker asserted there is no political panacea whereby purity of ballot may be preserved but said laws for the protection of honesty and integrity should be enacted to punish selling. "Punish the seller as well as the buyer," he said.

Governor Baker declared his belief that moral education in the home is more important for clean politics than legislation.

INVESTIGATE NOTE FOUND IN MISSING BADGER'S CAR

Iron Mountain, Mich.—(AP)—A note reading "Notify Mrs. Gabriel Hayes at Sagola," was found in the front seat of an abandoned automobile Sunday a few miles north of Sagola, 17 miles from here and has started the Sheriff on a search for the owner, Edward Garrick, Oshkosh, who disappeared from his home, partly clad, Saturday.

Mrs. Hayes, whose name was mentioned in the note, is a friend of the family and had visited at the Garrick home in Oshkosh last week. She described the man to Sheriff Rudolph Freeman. Mrs. Garrick said Monday at Oshkosh that she was mystified by her husband's disappearance and asserted that he was last seen Saturday morning.

SENATE KILLS MEMORIAL BILL FOR LAST TIME

Measure for $3,000,000 La-Follette Library Definitely Downed

Madison—(AP)— After a two hour discussion, dealing principally with the validity of Senator Gettelman's vote, the state senate Tuesday definitely killed a bill proposing a $3,000,000 LaFollette Memorial library.

The vote, 13 to 12, was a reconsideration of previous action when the bill was rejected by a smaller margin.

Senator Gettelman, confined in a Milwaukee hospital with injuries, was paired in the voting and was said to have signed two pairs, both for and against the measure. His second pair, placing him in favor of it, represented his position, he said.

After the sergeant-at-arms of the senate had repotred to the upper house, the Milwaukee senator's request, the senate voted unanimously to allow his second vote to stand. The vote, however, was not sufficient to bring about reconsideration.

Senator Hutchinson, who formerly had been in favor of the bill, changed his vote Tuesday and was recorded against it.

Roll call follows:

Against the bill: Blanchard, Caldwell, Daggett, Goodland, Hull, Hutchison, Markham, Mehigan, Morris, Roethe, H. H. Smith, W. L. Smith, and White—13.

For the bill: Barker, Cashman, Casperson, Chase, Englund, Keppel, Polakowski, Sauthoff, Schumann, Severson, Teasdale and Titus—12.

Senators Hunt, Ruffing, Carroll and Gettelman paired for the bill and Lahge, Boldt, Johnson and Mueller against.

The action of the senate definitely kills any further chance of reconsidering the bill.

JUDGES GET RAISE

Governor Zimmerman Monday signed the committee on judiciary bill calling for an increase in the salaries of circuit court judges. The new law provides for an annual salary of $8,000 for those judges in place of the present salary of $6,500. The increases are effective as the present terms of the judges expire.

SUE TO RECOVER FUNDS SECURED BY MURDERER

Madison—(AP)—Suit to recover approximately $1,000 which William N. Coffey, confessed murderer, is alleged to have procured illegally from his victim, Mrs. Hattie Sherman Hales, was filed here Tuesday by administrators of the Hales' estate.

Coffey, serving a life term at Waupun for the murder of the woman he married bigamously, deposited the money in a Madison bank after persuading her to transfer certain bonds to his name, the complaint charges. Attorneys for Mrs. Hales claim the money is still in the bank and should be turned over to the estate.

BELOIT WOMAN LEADS FIELD IN GOLF MEET

Milwaukee—(AP)—It appeared after half the field had completed play that Mrs. G. E. Cleophas of Beloit, would win medalist honors in this year's women's Wisconsin State golf championship which opened Tuesday on the Milwaukee County club course. Mrs. Cleophas had an 84 in the qualifying round Tuesday morning with a 43 on the outward 9, and 41 returning. She was paired with Miss Dorothy Page of Madison, women's western champion who took an 86 with 44 going out and 42 returning. Despite a cross wind, blowing in over the course from the west, which always adds difficulty, to scoring on the country club course, totals were surprisingly low Tuesday.

FULLER CONTINUES PROBE OF SACCO-VANZETTI CASE

Boston —(AP)— Governor Alvan T. Fuller continued his investigation of the Sacco-Vanzetti case Tuesday while his special advisory committee, named to conduct an independent inquiry, was considering what its report would be. Meanwhile, the two radicals under sentence of death next month kept to their hunger strike in protest against the secrecy of the joint survey of their trial and conviction.

The advisory committee wound up several week's hearing of witnesses Monday by listening to arguments by defense and state and then adjourned to deliberate on the mass of testimony it has received.

OILMEN FIGHT ABOUT TRADE WITH RUSSIA

World's Largest Producers May Break Because of Relation With Soviets

New York—(AP)—Report of threatened warfare among several of the world's largest oil companies over trade relations with soviet Russia were intensified Tuesday by a statement of Sir Henri Deterding, managing director of the Royal Dutch Shell group, attacking the policy of the Standard Oil company of New York and the Vacuum Oil company which have contract under which they purchase oil from Russia.

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, which last week announced that his company and the Royal Dutch Shell group had agreed upon a joint policy of no dealing with Russia until owners of the oil are compensated, is said by the New York Times to be on his way to London on a peace mission.

The Times says he hopes to prevent the Royal Dutch Shell from precipitating a struggle in which his company eventually may have to cast in its lot with the Standard of New York and the Vacuum company, thus destroying the friendly affiliation it now has with the Royal Dutch Shell.

Sir Henri, in his statement, charges the purchases of Russian oil by the American companies not only runs counter to the best interests of humanity and trade honesty, but are bound to replace American oil, of which there is at present a large overproduction.

The Royal Dutch Shell, aroused because the Standard of New York and the Vacuum company openly flouted its anti-soviet policies, say the Times, is preparing to invade the trade territories of the two latter companies even in the United States.

The Rockefellers are expected to use their influence to prevent any widening of the breach among the three companies.

THINGS LOOK BRIGHT FOR KING MICHAEL

Leader of Opposition Publicly Announces Loyalty to Boyking

Bucharest, Rumania —(AP)—Rumanian political unity around the child-king, Michael, was virtually achieved when the former opposition leader, General Averescu, publicly embraced Premier Bratiano and recognized the authority of the regency Monday night.

Averescu, who has been a bitter opponent of Bratiano and hostile to King Ferdinand, made his political reconciliation all the more emphatic by staging it in the presence of the full senate.

Bratiano, who has been strongly opposed to the return to Rumania of former Crown Prince Carol, succeeded Averescu as premier in June.

Another sensation of the senate session was the demand of Juliu Maniu, leader of the national peasants party, for the immediate dissolution of parliament. Amid an uproar from the liberals he charged that the post war government and elections were dishonest and unconstitutional.

Maniu's partisans, however, control only about 70 votes and it is not likely that they can cause the government any serious trouble.

WHEN IS A BET NOT A BET? GO TO MISSOURI AND SEE

Kansas City—(AP)—Missouri horse horse race promoters Tuesday were formulating plans to start a series of "big time" meets as a result of a decision Monday by the state supreme court holding the "contribution" system of placing money on horses did not violate the law against booking or pooling of race bets, passed in 1906. Under the system money is contributed to defray the expense of the race, net receipts are divided among ticket holders.

CAL WOULD DECORATE CHAMBERLIN WITH U. S. FLYING AWARD

Rapid City, S. D.—(AP)—President Coolidge intends to have the distinguished flying cross, the nation's highest reward to its aviators, conferred upon Clarence Chamberlin, New York to Germany flier, if it is at all possible under the law.

It is the view of the president that if Chamberlin can show some attachment to the army or navy through membership in the reserve corps of either branch this will make him eligible for the cross which congress has authorized as awards to the government's aviators.

He is anxious that the government show its feeling toward Chamberlin who piloted the first plane to cross the Atlantic carrying a passenger.

ELEVATED AND SUBWAY LINES TO SHUT DOWN

Attempts to Unionize Employes Cause of Threatened Trouble

2,500,000 ARE AFFECTED

Vote Tuesday Afternoon to Decide Whether Workers Favor Move

New York—(AP)—With employes and companies still at loggerheads, New York's 2,500,000 daily underground and overhead railway users prepared Tuesday for another mid-summer strike.

A strike affecting all the elevated and subway lines in Manhattan and Brooklyn and surface car service in Brooklyn loomed as almost a certainty for late Tuesday.

The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, whose efforts to unionize the employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit company, and the Brooklyn City Railroad caused the strike threat, has called a meeting of its members for 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when a strike vote will be taken. Should the vote be favorable the strike will become effective immediately.

PREPARE FOR STRIKE

Meanwhile, the city continued marshalling its transportation forces to meet the expected tie-up of the city's two main travel arteries.

Arrangements have been made for 1,300 extra busses to parallel the east and west side subways while municipal ferries will be run the length of Manhattan on the Hudson river.

Large corporations have been asked to operate their own trucks to bring their employes to and from work.

The involved companies hope, however, to keep their lines in operation through use of strike breakers. Fifteen hundred men have been pressed into service.

BRANDED AS COWARDS BY CORONER'S JURY

Men Failed to Aid Teacher Who Drowned After "Wild" Party Aboard Yacht

Seattle, Wash.—(AP)—F. Creigh Nelson, wealthy Seattle club man and broker, and two other men were branded by a coroner's jury Monday night as cowards, and held morally but not criminally responsible for the death of Miss Violet Maude Payne, music and dancing teacher, who presumably was drowned when she fell from Nelson's yacht here after a liquor party early last Wednesday. Miss Payne was a sister of Clyde Payne of Milltown, Wis.

Although Prosecutor Ewing D. Colvin announced there would be no further investigation of the tragedy unless additional evidence is uncovered, Nelson was held under a $20,000 bond. The other two men were freed.

Evidence was submitted indicating that the three men and Mrs. Winona Gorman, the fifth member of the party, stood by without making any real effort to rescue Miss Payne.

The coroner's jury found that Miss Payne met death when she accidentally slipped and fell into Lake Union while stepping from the boat to the Seattle Yacht club dock after what was termed a "wild party" aboard the vessel.

Nelson and two other men, the jury asserted, made "no real effort to rescue" the woman, but on the contrary, stood by and watched her struggle for her life in the lake waters.

Coffer Dam Crib Tips; Five Men Are Drowned

Menominee, Mich.— (AP) —Five men were drowned Tuesday morning in the Menominee river at White Rapids, when a coffer dam crib on which they were riding turned over, and the men jumped for their lives, according to meager reports received here. Two men were saved from drowning by the crew.

The victims, according to Mike Joyce, timekeeper, are:

Leo Hashey, 57, Minneapolis, foreman.

Michael Palka, 45, Iron Mountain, Mich., laborer.

Napoleon La Londe, 60, Manistique, carpenter.

Emanuel Le Brasseur, 62, Manistique, Mich., carpenter.

John Walborn, 43, Brainerd, Minn., carpenter.

The two men rescued are Sylvan LeRoy, Stephenson, Mich., and Oscar Johnson, Iron Mountain, Mich.

According to John Ryan, engineer of the Seims, Helmers, and Schaffner company, Minneapolis contractors, who are building a dam at White Rapids for the Northern Paper mills of Green Bay, the coffer dam crib, which was going upward with a load of sand and rock tipped over, and the men jumped into the water. The water near the rapids is full of currents and treacherous.

The crib had been filled Monday with sand and rock. Water had washed away the sand making it insecure, and as it made its ascent the crib lost its grip and turned over.

The bodies had not been recovered at noon.

Mother, Daughter Rout Burglar At Kimberly

Bravery of a housewife and her 10-year-old daughter early Tuesday morning routed a burglar who attempted to rob the home of John Hammonds at Kimberly.

The burglar took the screen off a bedroom window of the Hammonds' home and started ransacking the room looking for Hammonds' pay, Monday being payday at the Kimberly-Clark mills where Hammonds is employed. The noise the burglar caused in opening the bureau draws awakened Mrs. Hammonds.

Although the unmasked and unarmed intruder threatened to kill her if she resisted, Mrs. Hammonds fought him. Her screams awakened a ten-year-old daughter, who went to her mother's aid. The two of them, by the dint of much screaming, hair-pulling, biting and scratching thoroughly disheartened the burglar and he left via the open window.

Mrs. Hammonds described the man as being about six feet tall, blond, weighing about 180 pounds and wearing a gray cap and a brown suit.

County officers are confident as to the identity of the would-be burglar and an arrest was expected Tuesday afternoon. He is believed to be the same person that recently ransacked Jacobs' saloon in Kimberly, escaping with about $200.

Mrs. Hammonds was badly bruised about the face by the intruder but the child was unhurt.

LENA WILSON BRIDE OF BUDDY STILLMAN, RICH NEW YORK LAD

Returns to Canada for Wedding After Winter in New York

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

New York—Lena Wilson left Canada with the plain wardrobe of a simple little child of the woods who gave no more thought to what she wore than the birds or the little furred animals she knew and loved so well.

She went back Tuesday to become the bride of "Bud" Stillman with trunks full of such finery as a society belle takes for granted. Forty new frocks, dozens of hats, nine fur coats, and stacks of fragile French lingerie from New York's smartest shop have transformed her.

Lena has learned to dress as the wife of a millionaire with a house on Park avenue should dress. And yet, throughout her trousseau, for which she was allowed free choice and a generous checking account from her rich parents-in-law-to-be, there is evidence of her simple naturalness. There is almost a woodland motif throughout.

GREEN VELVET

One green velvet coat which she purchased, reminded her, I am sure, of her woodland home, for it is just that deep, mossy green that you find in a cool, quiet forest.

There is a chiffon evening frock just the color of moonlight, and another the color of flaming sun just before it actually flops down behind the horizon.

Many sport frocks have wide handkerchief scarfs, which she now ties in the Deauville fashion on the shoulder rather than knotted in front as she used to with the bandanna kerchiefs that pepped up her jersey frocks.

There's a sophisticated simplicity about the clothes she selected, showing she has made her first hurdle in becoming a New Yorker.

FOR EVENING—CHIFFON

For evening most of her dresses are of chiffon, in bright colors—green, red, blue, as well as white. These are all very simple, made entirely of the material, with handkerchief points and complicated cuts to give the popular full swing to the skirts.

For day she has a dozen dresses, all of the same type, that consist of pleated skirts with overblouses, some embroidered and some plain, with little coatees to match. All have long sleeves and knee-length skirts. These are in all colors.

For afternoon she selected foulards and printed crepe de chine, many of them made the same style. Her favorite model had a simple V neck, revealing a chemisette of Valenciennes lace, and a skirt with several ruffles arranged in points, and the simplest of sash closing.

AND HER HATS

In millinery Lena's taste is very similar to that of Mrs. Stillman's. She likes little close "aviator" hats, which she wears off her forehead, but very low over her ears. Her hats are mostly these simple felts, to match all her frocks, made on her head so that they fit in the perfect French fashion. She included a brim or so, but very small ones—Lena apparently has no taste for picture hats.

The nine fur coats included a snowy white ermine one for evening, a tawny leopard one for street, a beige American broadtail for sport.

Mrs. Stillman herself selected and supervised the wedding gown, which manages to be girlish enough for an eighteen-year bride, but is of white net, embroidered ceremonious at the same time, in pearls, worn over a slip of ivory colored satin—sleeveless and knee length.

A BILLOWING TRAIN

Instead of a long satin train Mrs. Stillman decided on a long train of tulle which will fall in billows and envelop the child in a cloud of white. Her wedding veil is a circular veil of net edged in real duchess lace. The center of this placed over her sleek little bobbed head and a band of lace and orange blossoms keep it in place. This veil arrangement is Mrs. Stillman's original idea.

The train is picoted in silver and little streamers of silver ribbon fall from the shoulder of her frock and get lost in the tulle like gleams of silver moonlight.

For two months practically all the hundred seamstresses at Henri Bendel's have been working on Lena's trousseau—and they were all remembered with a gift. She won all their hearts with her delightfully simple ways and her real appreciation of every effort in her behalf, and they are lavish in their praise of her.

SHE LIKES BRACELETS

Lena apparently has Mrs. Stillman's taste in jewelry, for she wears many bracelets, of the wide, heavy chain, bracelets, of the wide, heavy type, and she wears most frequently a necklace made of a heavy gold chain. Naturally her most prized piece of jewelry is the ring with the square cut emerald and diamond which "Bud" gave her when she promised to marry him.

Lena has never learned to use make up, or rather her perfect complexion has never called for it, and powder and rouge are still strangers to her.

Backwoods Girl's Romance Real Life Story Of Cinderalla

Here are the Before and After Pictures of "Little Lena Wilson," girl of the north woods, who became Mrs. James A. Stillman, Jr., Tuesday, and one of America's richest young matrons. At the left you see Lena of the bush, in the simple inexpensive little jersey frocks she wore there.

At the right you see Lena in her wedding gown which she wore for photographs just before she left New York where she has been spending the winter with the Stillmans, for the Stillman summer home at Grand Anse, Que., where she was married. The dress is pearl-embroidered white net over ivory satin. It is sleeveless, knee length and very girlish. Added girlishness is given by the train of tulle rather than satin and the wedding veil of net edged in duchess lace. The train is picoted in silver, and slender streamers of silver ribbon fall from the shoulders of the frock and blend with the tulle train.

FORMER STATE DRY OFFICER DENOUNCES PROHIBITION LAW

Tells Assemblyman Constitutional Amendment Has Not Place in American Charter

Madison —(AP)—A message of "congratulations" was extended to Senator Polakowski Tuesday for his introduction of a substitute amendment to repeal the state's prohibition enforcement law. The author of the message was Wisconsin's former state prohibition commissioner, W. Stanley Smith, Madison.

"Please accept my congratulations," the former commissioner said. "My services of state prohibition chief convinced me that the law could not be enforced with so large a percentage of the people antagonistic to the unwarranted and paternalistic interference with their personal rights.

"That feeling of antagonism was emphatically manifest at the referendum last year, and it would seem that the legislature is but following the mandate of the people to remove from our statute books the iniquitous law that has been of no benefit or profit to anyone but the bootlegger and grafter.

HINT TO CONGRESS

"Every expression of the people of Wisconsin, whether by referendum or by the wiping-out of such harmful enactments of enforcement by its legislature will furnish to the country and to congress the most convincing argument for the repeal of the federal law and of the constitutional amendment, which properly, has no place in the charter of human rights with its guarantees of individual rights and liberties.

"It is no 'traitorous violation of law or disloyalty to the flag' to differ by word or act with the fanatics, who forced upon our people in an unguarded moment of national trial, this harmful law that has wrought so much of danger to the homes and especially to the young people of our land.

"Repeal is but a question of time and an early repeal will furnish more effective opportunity to undo the harm already done and prevent further viciousness.

"It is an evidence of political wisdom to admit failure and correct a mistake rather than to tenaciously hold on to a wrong theory which no amount of enforcement can make right in practice.

"Such efforts as yours and those of the other members must be an effective influence in awakening the people to the greater danger of the usurpation of power and attempted dictation of the Holier-than-thou element traveling under the fearsome name of the Anti-Saloon League."

MRS. COOLIDGE NOW SETS THE STYLES IN WASHINGTON

"CAL" DROPPED AS ADVISOR ON WIFE'S STYLES

As Result, First Lady Perfect Example of "Before and After"

SELDOM WEARS FEATHERS

Wife of President Now Affects Short, Very Stylish Dresses

BY ALLENE SUMNER

The Prince of Wales may determine the cut of Britain's pants' legs, but it has never been customary for American fashion plates to follow the cut of the sartorial jib of the presidents' wives.

In fact, it has been quite the thing for Fashion to make the same grimace about the clothes of our first ladies as the same old dame makes when surveying Queen Mary's hats.

Please observe the past tense. "Has been."

ALL IS CHANGED

Have you seen by the papers the latest picture of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge?

It was the one taken at the president's birthday celebration a few days ago. Did you see the modishly brief skirt, the big summer hat sans the erstwhile w. k Coolidge feathers, the cute and chic little kick pleats, and the tout ensemble of modishness?

And before that, many an "Oh-and-ah" was heard o'er this broad realm when the photos of "Two First Ladies," Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, flooded the land.

"Two snappy looking girls!" was the general verdict.

Times change.

No one would have the temerity to suggest that the president's wife had posed as an illustration of a Before and After ad—or to illustrate a Fashion monolog entitled "How and How Not to Dress."

IT'S DIFFERENT NOW

But no law forbids thinking, and many people have been thinking that a handful of years of White House living have certainly changed the style of Grace Goodhue Coolidge until she could very ably pose as a Before and After ad of White House life.

"She's actually snappy!" is Washington's conservative substitute for a remark which once went, "Yes, she looks nice, but she's too conservative—always wears her skirts too long."

Even with all the evidence of the latest modish photos, Mrs. Coolidge has not utterly forgotten the political cause of a husband who has requested her to wear her evening gowns more than once, and not to be photographed more than once a season in really formal clothes.

But—political husband with an ax to grind or not—Mrs. Coolidge is a far different appearing woman today than when, entering the White House, she admitted that Calvin often selected her hats and gowns, or asked her not to wear things which he disliked.

The tale of the toque and the hat with the wings!

SHE DIDN'T LIKE IT

Mrs. Coolidge wore the toque for motoring, but Calvin didn't like it, so she wore the hat with the wings, complaining at the folly of it, "but Calvin likes it."

The Mrs. Coolidge of first White House days didn't even have a permanent wave. She has now. It's the round curl variety, but she says that the next one shall be a sure-enough marcel wave.

No woman feels it fair, of course, to dig up the pictures of yesteryear and contrast them with her present ones.

But, granting that fashions come and go, there is more than that to explain the difference between the Mrs. Coolidge who was laughed at on inauguration day because of her hat, and the Mrs. Coolidge of today whose hats are sans reproche.

The same independence about dress still exists. Mrs. Coolidge wears her present snappy clothes because she has cultivated a taste for them and not because she thinks she should.

When she was vice president's wife a society reporter called her at 6 o'clock one evening and asked what she was wearing to a 7 o'clock dinner.

"I don't know," said Mrs. Coolidge. "I have only two or three evening gowns, you know, and it seems so silly to keep reading about them. Oh, I'll probably be the blue one tonight."

Oh," said the reporter, "we've been calling that green."

"Fine!" laughed Mrs. Coolidge, "now write it up as blue and they'll think I have a new one!"

In the same spirit she wore remodeled gowns to the White House receptions and joked about their remodeling.

MAY TRY PARIS STYLES

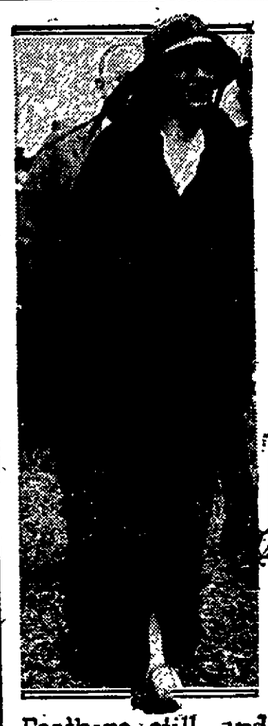

Rumors are about that, the snappy, chic, voguish, fashion-platey Mrs. Coolidge of the present who is wearing her skirts as short and as tight as Fashion's best, may change her mind about wearing "American-made clothes only!" and try a few flyers in to the fashion realm of Paree.

It's a safe bet, though, that the very fashionable first lady of the present still watches her pennies as when she first entered the White House and bought one of her best dresses at a "going out of business" sale for $39.50.

Maybe Its The Climate But Mrs. Coolidge Now Is Boss

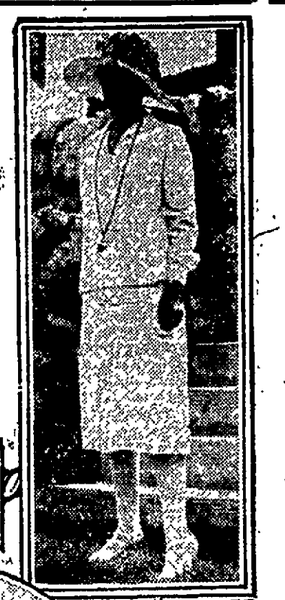

This picture might be called BEFORE. Here you have the high waists, long skirts, and utter lack of style featuring the First Ladys garb in vice-presidential days.

Feathers still, and ankle-length skirts. The president liked them and picked out her clothes.

More feathers. Mrs. Coolidge hated this hat for motoring, but the president liked it. She wore it.

Now it's AFTER Her very latest picture. Note short, stylish skirt.

A hat with a very long feather.

And This Is The Result

Here more snap Mrs. Coolidge's last Easter outfit of lacquer red and beige in ensemble suit style.

NEENAH MILL LEADS ANNUAL SAFETY DRIVE

The Kimberly-Clark company at Neenah is again ranking high in the annual safety drive conducted by the National Safety Council, according to W. J. Peacock, of Green Bay, member of the council.

According to Peacock, the mills were divided into three classes for the contest this year's contest in which the Kimberly-Clark mills are placed is Class A, in which there are more than 501 employes in the mill. Class B takes in mills with 201 to 500 employes, and Class C is composed of the smaller factories.

The results of the safety drive will be announced at the annual congress of the council, to be held in Chicago late in September.

Any moment maybe will it break. Any moment maybe will it break. Myself, Macedo, I am ready. To run fast, yes, ver' fast. And this morning I weel go see the priest an' make white my soul."

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service — by Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl who owns and lives on property adjoining the queer little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of one of her foremen. Her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnaped but is found again, largely through the efforts of VILAK, her cousin and protector, who is known in Porto Verde as ATTORNEY DAVIS, Elise's lawyer. Vilak has sent for LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, to help him get to the bottom of the mystery.

They are ignorant of the cause of this hostility toward Elise but suspect that a man named GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding character, is somehow involved.

Word is brought to Elise that WILSON, the manager of her property at VILLAPA, is despenately ill and must see her at once. Vilak suspects a trick and he insists that he and Nunally accompany her.

On the road to Villapa they are ambushed by a band of ruffians in the uniforms of soldiers. They tell Vilak that he and his companions are wanted for murder. The charge is obviously a fake. Vilak is convinced their captors are in the pay of Elise's enemies.

He and Nunnally are trussed up and thrown into a room, but the shrewd Vilak lets the termite ants swarm over his body and they soon eat nearly through his bonds. It is an easy matter for him to snap them. Releasing Nunnally, he overpowers his guard, points a gun at the leader and sets Elise free. They stampede the enemy's horses and escape. At Villapa, Wilson says he had not sent for them.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

He was sorry, terribly sorry the thing had happened, Wilson went on. He hoped Elise wouldn't hold it against him. Wouldn't she take his two pistols? Though they would leave the fazenda without a weapon, he'd be delighted to give them to her. And of course she needn't worry about Villapa now. He was perfectly able to take care of everything.

She refused a loan which would have seemingly left him helpless, expressed her delight that his condition had improved, and made ready to return to Porto Verde.

Wilson ingratiatingly insisted on sending a bodyguard for at least a part of the journey in order to prevent a repetition of her misadventures during the afternoon. Accordingly he sent for twenty of his laborers, armed them with machetes, clubs and axes, gave them horses and ordered them to accompany the travelers. "Sorry I can't go with you," he said obsequiously, his great drawn eyelids opening and shutting quickly as though they were too weak to bear the light of the torches flaming in the laborers' hands. "Terribly sorry. Feel I'm shirking. But you know how it is . . . you know how it is . . . after fever . . . after fever."

The cavalcade set off, the torches outlining men and horses in fantastic dancing red against the black and threatening sky. Uphill, downhill they rode, through the ravine where they had been ambushed, then through the swollen creek which formed the road to Porto Verde. The three travelers constantly searched the darkness for some evidence of renewed activity on the part of their attackers of the afternoon. But their efforts were wasted. They heard nothing, saw nothing. A short distance from the Porto Verde fazenda Elise, after consulting Vilak, sent their escort back to Villapa. The rain, which had ceased for a few hours, began to fall again in torrents. Elise tightened the raincoat about her slim neck. Suddenly she drew a sharp breath.

Vilak turned. "What's the matter?" he asked quietly.

"Nothing. Only I've just thought about Tinky." Nervously, unconsciously she quickened her horse. "A thoupsand things can have happened to him while we've been away. Anything can have happened."

"But nothing has happened. Be sensible. You've been a good soldier all day, a perfect soldier. I couldn't have asked for a better. Don't weaken and start being . . . feminine . . . at the last minute. Tinky'll be all right. Here. You'd better have a cigaret."

She took a light from his shielded hand and let her fingers linger gently upon his a moment. Then she put the cigaret to her lips.

She smoked pensively a moment. "I'm not a good soldier," she said at length. "You're only trying to keep up my spirits. I'm a bad soldier. So wretched that I'd be given a dishonorable discharge in any respectable army. This morning you told me not to go to Villapa. I went. You were right. I was wrong. Then, when we were captured, I did nothing but sit on a log and stare weakly into a fire. You, though bound hand and foot, first freed yourself and then freed me.

"Tomorrow I'm going to be a still worse soldier. I'm going to run away from the battle. And frankly, as far as Tinky is concerned, you were right when you said I'd be glad to get away before. I wan t to get him to some place where things can't happen with the ease they did today. If there were a boat out tonight, I'd take it. Yes, it seems to me, all in all, I'm a pretty poor sort of Amazon."

The rain had extinguished Vilak's cigaret. He struck a match to light it. By the flickering flame Elise saw that the bandage was no longer on the wound he had received in his wrist two days before. She snatched his hand and before he could prevent was binding it gently and effectively with a clean handkerchief. "I'm a grateful Amazon, at least," she murmured, brightening. "Even you can't keep me from being that."

They reached the fazenda. Elise hurried to find Tinky. He was in her bedroom, sleeping soundly. The jovial Hannah was sitting in a chair beside him. In the next room sat Schwartz, smoking a vast meerschaum pipe. He looked up and greeted Elise as she entered.

Assured that the child was safe, though it was close onto midnight, Elise hurried to have supper prepared for her two guests and herself. The three of them quickly changed their wet clothes for dressing gowns. They ate heartily, then played a single rubber of bridge, the wearied and sleepy old man making blunders that would have driven serious-minded bridge players into a passion. Vilak, with his monotonous regularity, won.

Elise shook her dainty head. She had completely recovered her usual sprightliness. "You're getting to be really unbeaarble," she said. In mock despair she threw her cards onto the table. "You're always right; you always win. No matter how good a hand I have, you always manage to make me play second fiddle somehow. I've half a mind to send you home. You're terribly hard on my self-esteem. I can't have such a clever person as you around."

She rose from the table. "After all, perhaps it isn't that you are any cleverer for being a man. Perhaps it's that you've merely got a long tradition behind you which we women haven't—sort of fooling the public for hundreds of centuries, you know and that gives you confidence. Anyway, I'll comfort myself by saying it's that. Good night, Mr. Nunnally. Good night, manly and superior relative," she said. She moved toward the door.

"Just a moment, Elise," Vilak's bantering voice checked her.

She halted. "Yes?"

Just wanted to ask you a question. Was that . . . kiss you gave me this afternoon a sign of homage, a tribute to your superior, was it cousinly, or was it . . . a proposal?"

She whipped the dressing gown tighter about her. "Pardon me if I tell you to go to the devil, my conceited friend," she flashed and whisked out of the room.

After bidding the old man good night, Vilak made his customary tour of the house, then retired. The pouring rain continued throughout the night, but ceased after a murky dawn.

Elise busied herself in completing preparations for her departure. Vilak, wishing to go to town to make a few purchases, sought out the old man, in order that they might make the journey together, but finding him deep in a sleep of exhaustion, did not wake him but set off alone. He reached Porto Verde, to see the usual groups of natives clustered in the road along the windows of the flimsy dilapidated shops. Today they were gazing ominously at the puddles of water which lay everywhere and predicting disaster.

One of the natives who worked on the fazenda recognized Vilak and raised his high conical hat.

"Eet is bad, ees it not all thees rain, Meester Davis?" he murmured. "Eet will make for us a flood. Yes, a most bad flood. Never before have I rain like thees see in Porto Verde. Never. Though I have live here twenty years. The dam at Avilos cannot but break.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

Dr. W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a Combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

ANOTHER ATTACK ON PROHIBITION

Confronted by the certainty, and afterward by the fact, that Governor Zimmerman would veto the Duncan beer bill, the legislature commenced to cast about for ways to register Wisconsin's disapproval of the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. A bill was prepared which provided for the abolishment of the office of prohibition commissioner, placing liquor enforcement under the supervision of the attorney-general. This move was made on the well founded assumption that the attorney-general would do nothing to enforce prohibition and that so far as the state was concerned, there would be no further cooperation with the federal government in upholding prohibition.

After the governor's veto of the Duncan measure the wet leaders in the legislature decided to go the extreme limit and attempt to repeal Wisconsin's entire prohibition law, known as the Severson enforcement act. The prospect is that the repeal bill will pass the senate, and it will, of course, be accepted by the house which is more heavily wet than the senate.

Where the Duncan beer bill was wholly indefensible on both moral and constitutional grounds, and threatened to disgrace the state, consistent and substantial argument may be advanced in support of repeal. The real effect of such a step would be to register Wisconsin's disapproval of both the law and federal enforcement. It would be equivalent to saying that Wisconsin is disgusted with prohibition and the corruption, favoritism and depravity that exist in federal government enforcement pretentions. It can also be defended on the proposition that Wisconsin has changed its attitude and does not believe in prohibition in principle, that it considers the experiment a failure, and desires to withdraw its cooperation for enforcement.

The worst that can be said of the procedure, which was originally adopted by New York as a protest measure, is that it evades the duty of the states to support the laws and constitution of the United States. We suppose the duty can be ignored or even refused in a case of this kind without being guilty of disloyalty, but it is certain that an act like that of the Duncan beer bill could be construed in no other light than as an attack upon the foundation of government. So far as actualities are concerned, repeal will make no difference, for the state has given and will continue to give no real cooperation to the federal government in enforcing the Volstead act. We should not, therefore, be greatly surprised to see Governor Zimmerman permit an act of this kind to become a law.

THE CHILDRENS' BUREAU

The childrens' bureau of the United States department of labor has been greatly increasing its facilities within the last few years and now is making its work felt throughout the country. The states, particularly the older eastern states, have been somewhat backward about modernizing their legislation concerning children. The childrens' bureau has done much to bring to light cases of oppressive laws permitting gross negligence of children, and the publicity given its findings from time to time has resulted in revision of statutes to care for these cases.

It is distressing to think that in this generation it has been possible in at least one state, up to this year, to indenture a child in much the same way that bond slaves were indentured in colonial times; that is, the parents, presumably for a consideration, could give a child to others to work for them for a period of years with no compensation except food and clothing which in many cases was of the lowest standard.

In addition to bringing such cases before the public and causing corrective measures to be taken, the bureau is constantly working to enlighten parents, teachers and others in charge of children on their proper care. Hundreds of thousands of pamphlets on the care of children are distributed free by the bureau which takes the view that the future of the United States depends entirely on the welfare of its children.

The childrens' bureau is one of the departments of the federal government that actually functions. Its aim is laudable and its work commendable. The influence of its effort is a long step toward a higher grade citizen for the future.

A CONFIDENT GERMANY

With a confidence that was almost entirely lacking two years ago Germany is advancing by great strides toward a complete rehabilitation, and, in fact, toward a greater destiny than was hers before the World war, because she is now progressing with her mind occupied by thoughts of peace and industrial and commercial advancement, rather than dreams of a Teutonic world with the capital at Berlin.

With eyes strictly to the fore Germany today is forgetting the bitterness of post war feeling. She is joining more heartily in efforts to improve international feeling, she is showing more willingness to cooperate with other nations. No longer an obstructionist, Germany is turning apparently to the task of building for a future in which the sword plays no part.

Germany is determined to lift herself by her own bootstraps, so to speak, and is succeeding admirably. The biggest force in the accomplishment of this desire, however, lies not so much in the innate good points of German character, and German industry, but in the confidence which has lately been so apparent throughout the nation. True there are pessimists, but they are in the minority and are usually the same men who twirl moustaches and talk of a return of the good old days and the restoration of the Hohenzollern dynasty.

But these pessimists are in a constantly decreasing minority. Death takes its toll and the younger generation as it comes up is not nearly so concerned about past glories of which they know little and care less. The younger generation is interested in what Germany is to become, and not in what it has been. This younger generation is educated and has suffered enough hardship to be willing to work for a prosperity that can only come through cooperation with other nations, tending strictly to business and developing the nation in a sane, orderly way.

FRENCH DIVORCES

That the American people have an entirely false idea of French divorces, is the contention of J. G. Mancini, a member of the Paris bar now in New York as legal advisor to the French consulate. Despite the impression, steadily gaining ground in America that something in the nature of a "divorce mill" is operating in the French capital for the benefit of foreigners, especially Americans, Mr. Mancini declares that the processes of the French courts are not much faster than our own, that reports of divorces being obtained with ease are greatly exaggerated and that steps have now been taken to check minor abuses formerly possible under the French law.

He explains, however, that in general French courts take a more lenient view of divorce and that their conception of abstract justice, especially where its affects an individual's personal liberty, is far broader than the American conception. For instance, the insistence of the American courts on a stated term of residence is unknown in the French judicial processes. However, the increasing list of actions brought by Americans has caused the recent invocation of a six-months rule which will henceforth be enforced.

It is interesting to note that French divorces are only to be obtained for adultery, cruelty and conviction for infamous crimes. Insanity is not a cause. Divorce by mutual consent is impossible in France, M. Mancini declares, despite American conceptions to the contrary. He points out that there are certain steps which must be taken by the parties concerned in a divorce which makes the process not a particularly swift one at all.

It is fortunate that M. Mancini has taken the opportunity to give us the facts. Americans have had the impression that divorce in France was a facile procedure, and that [illegible] of convenience [illegible] divorce.

THE TREATMENT OF CATARACT

Avowedly I know no more about cataract than the ordinary physician knows, and that is not much. It may be that in attempting to give readers what I conceive to be the best authoritative opinion about this I have fallen into error. My reply to inquiries has generally been to the effect that nothing but operation—removal of the opaque lens—can restore useful vision when vision has been dimmed by cataract so that the patient can no longer read or see well enough to take care of himself. Several lay readers have assured me I am wrong about that, though they only asked that I give them the names or addresses of those inquiring, and this I cannot do in any case. One reputable occulist, in fact an eye specialist noted in the field and famed as an instructor of physicians studying diseases of the eyes, tells me that for the last 10 years, at nearly every big annual meeting of the oculists of the country, there has been at least one paper regarding the treatment of incipient cataract (incipient means early, just beginning) by other means than operations. And this noted specialist assures me that many cases of incipient cataract are arrested by injection treatments and other local treatments of the eyes, together with general hygiene treatment of the patient. My ophthalmological friend also refers me to recent scientific reports in the literature of cataract, and I gather from these scientific reports that the leaders of the profession have been using other than surgical treatment for the earlier stage of cataract and with considerable satisfaction to their patients.

Now there is grave danger that what I am saying here may be misunderstood. Let me emphasize one fact before we go further: Anyone who purports to be able to "dissolve" cataract by any form of treatment, when the cataract has already developed, is a fool or a faker.

Now on the other hand, I don't want anyone who really has a beginning cataract to assume that I condemn or advise against nonsurgical treatment. If your physician or oculist is a reputable one and he deems injection treatment or hygienic measures worth while in your case, no one else is in a better position to give you sound advice about it. Many disreputable "specialists" offer to "dissolve" cataract by some kind of mysterious medicine or hocus pocus. Next to having cataract, the worst possible fate for the patient is to fall into the hands of a healer without honor.

As one of the oculists remarks who has had gratifying results from the treatment of early or beginning cataract by injection: "To the average layman the term cataract usually implies some almost malign growth which soon will bring on blindness and necessitates a serious operation for its removal, with some uncertainty as to the end results. He perhaps recalls some elderly parent or grandparent who was made blind by cataract, and whose vision was not restored by an operation which perhaps required much time motionless in bed in a darkened room. The term cataract certainly strikes terror . . . "

Well, that isn't a fair picture of cataract. It is as crude and obsolete as the "brain fever" that the silk hat hero of the novel of grandmother's day, or the fainting, sickly heroine developed when the author got 'em into a situation otherwise hard to explain.

In the first place, the darkened room of old time cataract operations has long since been opened up to daylight. A sentence to a dark room is no more essential now than it is in a case of measles. Only old fogies cling to these ancient practices. If light must be subdued or excluded from the eyes a suitable pair of goggles or other covering will serve every purpose.

THE BIG PARADE

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Each year Manhattan swallows up 50,000 sons of 50,000 American mothers.

From farms, they come, each believing that here are to be found the opportunities denied by their former provincialism.

Over and over again the story is told: In some rural community shaded by quiet trees, some lad has long been looking at the skyline. He has been brooding over the smallness of his world and inwardly revolting at the apparent monotony of his life. Perhaps he must rise in the morning and work in the field, perhaps he must seed and mow and harvest; perhaps he must feed the stock and do the chores.

Or is it a little town, or perhaps a big town, where things haven't "broken" so well for the young man. He blames the place and the "breaks." If only he could get to the "big place."

And so they come in an endless parade. Few arrive with more than $100 in their jeans, few leave without the tears of a mother upon their shoulders. Manhattan scarcely knows they have arrived. But for certain statisticians who turn these strugglings into cold figures there would be no way of knowing.

* * *

Just now, the best of statisticians say that the task of getting along in New York is harder than ever before. "The ill-equipped and broken-of-purse are clogging the avenues of opportunity as never before in the city's history," says a letter upon my desk. "For the clean lad who comes with a little money, a good stout heart and the willingness to do anything, there are still a few footholds. But the climb is long and often hearbreaking."

I don't expect this to be heeded by the army of ambitious—but there it is, for what it's worth.

On the other side of the picture—perhaps 75 per cent of those who have climbed very nicely in this man's town are from "the provinces"—as they call the outside world.

The last word concerning New York is a magazine, The New Yorker. It is run by one Harold Ross, with whom I used to cover the water-front in San Francisco.

The three interpreters of New York are O. O. McIntyre, who hails from Ohio, Indiana and way points; Burton Rascoe, who came out of Illinois, and yours truly, who browsed in from Michigan, Colorado and San Francisco. Roy Howard, who heads the Scripps-Howard newspapers, came from Indiana; Ray Long, who edits the Hearst magazines, and Harry Burton, who operates McCalls, came from Ohio; Edna Ferber hails from Illinois; Robert Henri, the great artist, is a son of Cincinnati—and so it goes.

Jimmy Walker, the mayor, happens to belong here.

Some have to pay for the concession and a fat concession it is in the Broadway belt, where it sometimes takes half a day to mak ea single floor, thanks to the new arrivals. Horatio Algier's bootblacks were mere pikers compared to these, some of whom make more per day than the office clerks, whose shoes they shine, make in a week.

HASKIN WRITES TODAY ON—

MILLION DOLLAR INCOMES

Washington, D. C. — The number of multimillionaires in the United States took a tremendous leap from 1924 to 1925 and in the latter year exceeded any previous one. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has just made available statistics of income, as revealed by the returns made to the internal Revenue Bureau. Due to the time required in making the elaborate compilations from more than four million returns, the data for 1925 are only now available for the first time.

In 1925 there were 207 persons who had incomes of $1,000,000 a year or more. Back in 1914, the year in which the European war broke out, this country boasted 60 individuals in this multimillionaire class. The following year showed that the number had exactly doubled. By 1916 the figure had mounted to 206, a figure which remained the record until this latest one for 1925.

Inasmuch as the country has enjoyed continued prosperity and lower Federal taxes it is not unlikely that the current year will show, when the figures have been compiled that the number has increased. After the high year of 1916 came 1917, the year in wich the United States entered war. Heavy Federal taxes were levied and, although vast sums were made out of munitions and other war activities, taxes ate into profits so greatly that the number of individuals having incomes of $1,000,000 or more was cut down to 141. In 1918 the number was diminished to 67, in 1919 to 65, and in 1920 to 33, only about half the number before the war.

It was in 1920 that the great depression swept over the country bringing the number of these super-millionaires down to 21 in 1921, only one over a third of the pre-war peace time number. But, the recovery became rapid with the beginning of tax reduction, liquidation of the public debt, and general revival of business. By 1922 the number was back to 67 more than a three-fold increase in one year. Seventy-four was the number in 1923 and 75 in 1924. Then came another increase of nearly three-fold bringing the record figure of 207 in 1925.

RICH ARE GETTING RICHER

Of these, many had incomes considerably in excess of $1,000,000 a year. These super-millionaires were heavily hit by the 1920 - 21 depession. In 1921 there were 12 with incomes from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 while in 1925 there were 104 in this class. In 1921 there was none in the class from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 while in 1925 there were 43. In 1921 there were three persons who had incomes from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 while 1925 showed 29 — almost ten times as many.

Five individuals in 1921 reported incomes ranging from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000, while in 1925 there were five such individuals. In 1921 there were no incomes reported between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 a year in 1925, nine were reported. Incomes of $5,000,000 a year and over are grouped to conceal the indentity of the taxpayer as it would be fairly easy for the public to make a shrewd guess. Only one such income was reported for 1921 while there were seven in 1925.

Obviously the post-war period has been one of unexampled prosperity when wealth piles up in such a fabulous manner and this despite the fact that both Federal and stae taxes still are far higher than they were before the war.

It must be borne in mind that these figures do not mean that these men were merely millionaires. A millionaire is one who has a fortune of $1,000,000. But these — 207 of them in 1925 —had annual incomes of $1,000,000 or more. A good return on $1,000,000 would be $100,000 a year, depending on how the fortune was invested. The United States now has 4759 simple millionaires or, at any rate, persons having annual incomes of from $100,000 to $150,000. Between this income class and that of those with incomes of more than $150,000 but less than $1,000,000 a year there are 4604. Therefore to ascertain the total number of millionaires or those who are more than millionaires in the United States, every one above the $100,000 income class may be included and this shows a grand total of 9570, plus the 207 super-millionaires.

Now back in 1921 there were but 1267 in the simple millionaire class. Those between that class and the super-millionaire class of incomes of $1,000,000 a year and more totaled 2314. If to these are added the 21 super-millionaires, a grand total of 2335 is obtained as against a grand total of 3777 in 1925. Thus it will be seen that in 1925 there were more than four times as many millionaires in the United States as there were in 1921.

IF BIG INCOMES WERE DIVIDED

If those having the greater fortunes were to divide them up in such a way as to make simple millionaires, that is, persons with fortunes of $1,000,000 instead of incomes of that amount the number of American millionaires would be greatly multiplied. Thus the man with an income of $1,000,000 a year could make te simple millionaires merely out of his income. He could, in fact, make ten millionaires every year. The man with an income of $5,000,000 a year could make 50 simple millionaires every year.

As there were 104 persons with incomes of $1,000,000 a year in 1925 they could make 1040 simple millionaires each year out of their incomes. Those in the classes between the $1,000,000 income mark and the top could make 1030 simple millionaires each year. Then there is the large group having incomes from the $200,000 a year or double-millionaire class to the $1,000,000 a year class. These, it is estimated could, by dividing their incomes, make 52,250 simple millionaires each year.

An aggregate of all these figures brings a grand total of approximately 60,000 million-dollar fortunes which could be reproduced each year.

The figures may be regarded as highly conservative, inasmuch as the $100,000 annual incomes class has been assumed as representing a fortune of $1,000,000. It will be noted that this presupposes a return of ten per cent on the fortune.

A great many million-dollar fortunes do not bring so large a return. Many are almost wholly invested in Government securities paying only four or five per cent interest. Large sums are invested in industrial stocks and bonds whose dividends may not exceed six per cent and some of which pay still less and, in some years, pracically nothing. Nevertheless the holdings represent a million-dollar fortune which, while not bringing an immediate income, could be liquidated for that amount.

With these added, in all probablity it would appear that there are at least 100,000 million-dollar fortunes in the United States.

Q. Just what is a tornado? G. F. B.

A. The tornado is a column of violent and destructive winds blowing spirally inward and upward around an axis of very low pressure. Its cross section is nearly circular and generally 1000 feet or less in diameter—often not over 100 feet across. The cyclone on the other hand is that widely extended system of winds, nearly always moderate and harmless in middle and higher latitudes, that blows about a center of relatively low atmosphere pressure. It usually lis oval in cross-section and ranges, roughly, from 100 to 1000 miles across. Some people call a tornado (the typical "twister") a cyclone, but this is not in accordance with best usage.

Q. Is it true that there were more negro deserters then white deserters during the World War? T. F. T.

A. According to the report of the Provost Marshal General, the total white registrants between the dates of June 5, 1917, and September 11, 1918, was 9,562,515; the total colored registrants, 1,078,331. The reported white desertions numbered 363,030, or 3.86 per cent of the total white registration. The reported colored desertions number 105,831, or 9.81 per cent of the total colored registrants.

HOT WEATHER AND HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

During the hot weather it is well for the baby to be out-of-doors at least early in the morning and late in the afternoon. During the hottest portions of the day, the child will probably be more comfortable if kept indoors in the collest room of the house.

It should of course be understood that a baby left out-of-doors needs watching. It ought to be protected by a proper netting against flies, mosquitoes and other insects. It ought to be protected by suitable arrangements against being troubled by dogs, cats and wandering animals. Furthermore, a baby out-of-doors is likely to attract some public attention from neighbors and visitors. Any baby will do much better if allowed to lie quietly than if it is picked up by every passing stranger. Under no circumstances should visitors be allowed to mouth or kiss the baby, or to amuse themselves by tossing it in the air.

In some of the hospitals in New Zealand babies live out-of-doors all day and sleep in well ventilated rooms at night. A child may be habituated to various degrees of exposure, but should not be subjected too suddenly to rigorous climatic conditions.

In the summer, because of perspiration, babies are likely to suffer from irritation of the skin or from the condition called "heat rash." If the skin is irritated, the difficulty may arise from the fact that the garments have not been changed often enough, or that the skin has not been properly cleaned or dried after the garments are changed.

The care of the skin in the summer involves the use of little soap and that which is used should be mild. The skin should be well dried after washing, and irritated creases may be sprinkled with a good dusting powder. If the weather is extremely hot, all clothing may be removed from the baby and it will lie comfortably in its crib or in the buggy.

In the presence of prickly heat or any other eruption or rash that is not due to an infection, the skin may be sponged lightly several times each day without soap and dusted with a suitable dusting power after thorough drying.

WASHINGTON ISLAND HOLSTEIN CLUB PLANS ANNUAL PICNIC

MANY INTERESTING EVENTS ON PROGRAM FOR COMING EVENT

Expect Three Speakers from U. of W. Agricultural College to Give Talks

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Washington Island, Wis.—Seventy-five people attended a meeting of the Washington Island Holstein Breeders' association in Nelson's hall, Tuesday evening, July 19. The principal speakers were B. F. Rusy, county agent, and William J. Gilson, superintendent of the schools of Door-co, who during the day, had been inspecting the work of the members of 4-H Clubs on the island. These men reported on the numbers of calls made Tuesday, the interest in club work shown by the boys and girls and the progress made by each club member visited. After the club reports were presented, Mr. Gilson talked on the relationship of 4-H club work and the regular academic work of the schools of Door-co and Mr. Rusy talked on the corn borer and the annual picnic of the Holstein Breeders' association of Washington island to be held in Ole Hagen's grove on the island, Aug. 25.

As a part of the program of the picnic, it was decided to obtain two speakers, a woman and two men connected with the extension department of the agricultural college of the University of Wisconsin. As it was not known what speakers would be available on the day of the picnic, the selection was left to Mr. Rusy after the names of several speakers of the agricultural college were mentioned. Other fatures of the picnic will be cattle judging, races, games and a great variety of interesting stunts in which the boys and girls and men and women of Washington island are to participate.

In his talk on the corn borer, Mr. Rusy said, "There are several things relative to the corn borer that we all ought to know even if it is difficult for us to arouse our interest in and begin fighting a pest that is distant and is not bothering us. What is the use of us getting excited? We have never seen the corn borer and I hope we may never see it.

"Several counties across the lake are already infested with the corn borer. If it reaches this side of the lake, its landing place will probably be in Kewaunee or Door-cos. We may think we are safe in Washington Island, even if the borer does arrive, as we are not raising much corn on the island. But when the borer can not get corn he thrives on fruits, small grain crops, vegetables and legumes. As this is the case, and as the borers lay waste the fields after they are thoroughly established, the prevention of the borer epidemic is of more importance than the cure.

"The corn borer may fly across Lake Michigan or be carried here and land at any time. We can not prevent that possibility, but we can be on the lookout in our fields for the first arrivals. preserve suspected specimens and place them in the hands of the county agent.

"The first evidence of the presence of the corn borer in a cornfield is broken tassels.

"Deep plowing in fall and putting the corn in silos will control the borer. In Illinois, corn growers use beaters to break corn stalk and to scatter the borers on the surface. Here on the island we cannot plow deeply as the soil is too shallow in some fields to permit that. Not all of the corn raised here goes into silos. I have seen rocks, in Illinois, shot into adjoining fields with the force of the beaters. The beater would not be serviceable here in some fields on account of the stones in its path. But we shall find some way of exterminating the borer in case of its arrival.

DIRT SPOILS MILK

"The thing that spoils more milk, cream and butter than anything else is just plain dirt that gets into the milk in a hundred different ways," reports the Oregon Agricultural College.

FEED COWS GRAIN

Under average conditions pasture alone isn't enough for cows in milk. They need a grain mixture containing 12 to 16 per cent protein, says Carl B. Bender, of the New Jersey Experiment Station at New Brunswick.

ALFALFA GROWS IN SAND

The above picture was taken by Robert Amundson, county agent, on the farm of George Cuff and Son, four miles south of New London.

This piece is blow sand, on which an excellent crop of alfalfa was taken off in 1926.

This year the crop looks fully as good as a year ago. It probably will yield three tons of hay per acre or two cuttings. Hardly a plant killed out there last winter when much of the clay land crop froze out.

Four tons of limestone per acre was used on this sand together with sour manure. Many farmers in the sandy section are enthusiastic over the results they are having with this crop on sand after it is limed. John Kedry in the same neighborhood has a good stand on sand after it has gone through three winters. They report that limestone does its best work after the first year. It seems to take about that long for it to dissolve enough to become effective.

Limestone crushers have been working in the county line section for the past two years and a lot of stone has been used. O. C. Cuff declares that blow sand when limed makes the best kind of alfalfa land.

Rotarians Aid 4-H Club Members In Door County

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Washington Island—Door-co is the only county in the state in which the county agent and the county superintendent of school together inspect calves, pigs, garden, canning, sewing and other projects of the members of 4-H clubs. Together they share the responsibility, for the organization and promotion of clubs by mutual consent. Furthermore this county is the only one in which committees of a Rotary club visit each member of the 4-H clubs, inspect his work, praise what he has done and encourages him to do better.

It is easily understood how the county superintendent of schools and the county agent may work together for the promotion of education among rural children but the cooperation of a Rotary club in the same line of effort needs a word of explanation. Members of 4-H clubs in Door-co are divided into several groups. An equal number of committees of three are appointed from the Rotary club and each committee is assigned to visit one group of 4-H club members individually and inspect the special projects.

The writer has not seen a committee of the Sturgeon Bay Rotary club on a tour of inspection among 4-H club members but he talked to William J. Gilson, county superintendent of schools and B. F. Rusy, county agent at Washington Island, inspecting work of Miss Julia Saabye in her garden. The Saabye children are members of the 4-H club of the Lucke school, who have selected gardening for their club project. Miss Saabye is raising beets, carrots, tomatoes, cucumbers and radishes. Her brothers are raising a half-acre of potatoes each as their project.

Louis Gunnlaugsson has the distinction of being the first and only breeder of pure bred Guernsey cattle on Washington Island and Eugene, his son: the honor of being the only 4-H Club member on the island who has selected a pure bred Guernsey calf for a project.

HOW OTHERS DO IT

ASHES WORK WONDERS

Tony Schuh, Hortonville, reports that ashes on some sand knolls has worked wonders with ay. Unleached wood-ashes contain a lot of potash, and many land farmers have noticed that the growth where brush or rubbish has been burned, is far greener and better.

HAY IS GOOD

Anton Miller, Kaukauna, used phosphate on a field of alsike clover that looked very badly done this spring. At cutting time the piece treated with phosphate, cut considerably more hay per acre than the hay next to it which had a beter start, but finished up less satisfactory than the other.

Henry Newhouse, living in the town of Kaukauna, used a little acid phosphate on sugar beets with marked results. The rows with no treatment were considerably smaller on July 17th than those that had received an application of phosphate.

C. J. Chapman, soil expert of the College of Agriculture, states that on nearly all of the soil analysis made of clay land in Outagamie-co showed marked shortages of phosphates, and recommended its use as a supplement to manure on most of our heavy clay soils. He states that while phosphates give results on clay, this element is not sufficient on sandy land or the black soils of Bovina, Black Creek, Deer Creek and Maple Creek. On the latter soils he recommends the use of a fertilizer containing both phosphates and potash. Many of the light soils are very short of potash.

USES ACID PHOSPHATE

Martin Arnoldussen, who lives in the town of Kaukauna, had never tried commercial fertilizers until this spring, when he bought a few sacks to try it out. He used 20 per cent acid phosphate which sold for about $31 a ton.

He sowed a sack of this in his barley field, by hand, at the rate of about 200 pounds per acre. Sunday, July 17, a little demonstration and meeting was held there with County Agent Amundson to study the results. At that time the barley treated with phosphate was ripe while all around it the grain was still entirely green.

John Kavanaugh used a little acid phosphate on oats and declares he has good oats where it never amounted to much before.

Chris Saabye One Of Pioneer Island Settlers

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Washington Island—In reply to a question about the first settlers of Washington Island, Christ Saabye said that early settlers came in groups made up of people of a single nationality, and that all representatives of the first and second groups and all of the third group except himself were gone.

Because he had heard from relatives and friends that land on the island was cheap and excellent for farming, the foster father of Mr. Saabye came to Washington island in 1868 bringing his family with him and settled on three forties of land of his own choice. As there were no roads nor land marks on the island at the time of the purchase, the father experienced difficulty in locating his land.

On one of the forties, as soon as he had settled the boundary difficulties to his own satisfaction, the father built a bark cabin of small dimensions, with no partitions or floor. In this primitive construction, except in dead winter, the family lived the first year on the island. The spring following, the father started building a log house of two rooms and in the only room completed, the family passed the second year.

After working one winter in Chicago he bought a cow and a few chickens and these purchases solved the problem of food supply.

By the terms of a will, Mr. Saabye, at the death of the father came into into possession of two forties of the farm by paying the claims of children and mother. The mother held title to the third forty. After the death of her husband, the mother became dissatisfied with life on the island and made preparations to return to the old country. To increase her funds for the trip, she asked Mr. Saabye for the money he still owed her. As he had no money, Mr. Saabye requested the mother to take another forty of the farm and to pay him the balance. The mother did this and from the sale of her land got money to finance her trip. With the money paid him by the mother, Mr. Saabye lifted the mortgage on his forty.

After years of farming in the ordinary way, Mr. Saabye started to raise cherries on a large scale, by planting in the neighborhood of 500 trees. His trees grew and gave great promise but the pests came year after year and blighted the leaves and destroyed the blossoms until he was obliged to sell the crop that ripened each year at 50 cents or less a case. This all took place years before the effect of spraying cherry trees was known.

Discouraged with his experience as the pioneer in the cherry raising industry on the island he cut down his trees and turned to more lucrative lines of farming.

WAUPACA-CO FARM CLUBS SHOW GOOD RESULTS OF WORK

Lucille Van Ornum, 14, Has Outstanding Garden Among Club Members

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Scandinavia—During the past week, Edward Ehlert, club leader of Waupaca-co, visited the work of five clubs and found it encouraging. The clubs visited are the Woodland Garden club near Clintonville; Hobart Garden club near Weyauwega; Lynwood Calf club near Lind Center; Maple Grove Corn and Garden club near Waupaca; Garden club at Scandinavia.

The Woodland Garden club has five members. Three Ulrich boys are caring for a plot of cucumbers. The plot indicates that the boys are about to realize a goodly sum in return for their work. Howard Jorgenson, who is only nine-years-old, has the outstanding garden in the Scandinavia Garden club. The gardens of Irene and Clifford Otterson are very good.

The Hobart Garden club is the outstanding garden club which the leader has visited thus far. All of the gardens are in excellent condition and indicate that hard work will be repaid with good results. The garden of Lucille Van Ornum is the best of the 70 gardens which the club leader has visited. Lucille has no mother, brothers nor sisters. She is 14 years of age, keeps an 11 room house spotlessly clean, does all the baking and cooking and finds time besides to belong to a garden club. The dimensions of her garden are 60 by 75 feet. Lucille has planted 15 different varieties of vegetables besides a number of flowers. Every row is perfectly straight, and the garden is admirably arranged. The grass is clipped along the edges making the plot present a beautiful appearance.

A group meeting was held at the home of Mrs. William Stillman who is the leader of this club on Thursday evening. Eleven boys and girls are members of the club, but 17 children attended the meeting. In addition 12 adults were present. The parents of members of this club are interested in the work of their children. Plans were made at the group meeting for the county fair exhibit. A splendid exhibit of garden vegetables is expected from the Hobart club.

The Linwood Calf club boys were visited last Thursday morning by the county leader. Five boys are members of this club and are doing good work. Mr. Jenny, the leader, has a keen knowledge of the dairy industry and is one of the successful club leaders of the county.

A group meeting was held at the home of Mrs. George Peterson in the McFall district near Sheridan Wednesday afternoon. The two leaders, Mrs. George Peterson and Mrs. Theodore Jensen, have been doing good work.

A club of seven members, which was organized at Fremont, now has 25 members. This is the largest increase in club membership in the county. Mrs. H. Billington is the leader.

M'CALL HEADS NEW SOIL RESEARCH BODY

New Bureau Will Direct Functions of Several Other Combined Boards

Washington—(AP)—Prof. A. G. McCall, former chief of the Department of Soils and Geology at the University of Maryland, has been selected to direct the soils work of the new Bureau of Chemistry and Soils in U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The selection was made in connection with plans to free administrative officers of definite research work. The new bureau is a combination of the research divisions of the old Bureau of Chemistry, the Bureau of Soils and the Fixed Nitrogen Research Laboratory.

Regulatory work formerly carried on by the Bureau of Chemistry has been combined with similar functions in the Insecticide and Fungicide Board and will be controlled by the new Food, Drug and Insecticide Administration.

The division is not expected to eliminate research work incidental to regulatory and administrative activities.

Dr. McCall received his B. Sc. degree from Ohio State University in 1910 and his Ph. D from Johns Hopkins in 1916. From 1904 until 1916 he was Assistant Professor and Professor of Agronomy at Ohio State. He was executive secretary of the First International Congress of Soil Science recently held in Washington and has been active in promoting soil science as a writer and investigator.

ISLAND ORCHARDS YIELD BIG CROPS

Expect Cherry Harvest Will Be as Big as Any in Door-co

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Washington Island—Christ. Jacobsen has an orchard of 90 cherry trees that are loaded with cherries this season. On these trees the cherries are now hanging in large clusters, like bunches of grapes. Two years ago, Mr. Jacobsen picked 250 cases of cherries and he expects to pick the same number of cases this season. Mr. Jacobsen and other growers of cherries on the island have proved that cherries can be grown on the island as successfully as in any other part of Door-co. The soil and weather conditions are just right and the farmers have learned the art of raising big crops each year. Their only trouble now is to market their cherries while the fruit is fresh. The marketing problem is the only one left for the island growers to solve.

Other cherry orchard men on the island are, William Jacobson with 150 cherry trees; Peter Gunlangsson, 200 trees; Edward Aznoe, 250 trees; Carl Nelson, 100 trees; Art Wickman, 500 trees.

Some day when enough growers are raising cherries, a canning plant will be built on the island and the marketing problem will be permanently solved in that way.

FIND PECULIAR WORM IN SWEET CORN FIELD

Examine Vermin froom Neenah Farm, to Determine Whether It Is Corn Borer

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Neenah—John Miller, route 9, being suspicious about a peculiar worm boring into the stalks of his sweet corn and eating its way up and down the center of the stalks and causing them to wilt and break down, brought several of the stalks to the cattle spraying demonstration on the farm of E. Hughes, Neenah, Thursday, together with a specimen of the worm, and presented them to G. A. Sell for examination and identification. Mr. Miller stated that he had found a number of similar worms in his corn stubble last spring. Mr. Miller's specimens aroused great interest among the farmers at the cattle spraying demonstration. Mr. Sell did not decide whether the worm was a corn borer but accepted the specimen for farther examination and requested Mr. Miller to collect more specimens of the pest and to deliver collection to him.

Prompted by this interruption of the spraying demonstration, Mr. Sell advised the farmers present to be on the outlook for evidences of arrival of corn borers and to bring any suspicious worms to him that they discover at work in their corn, and said that the corn borer moth, in infested territory, flies about corn fields at this season of the year and deposits eggs on the leaves of corn stalks. When the eggs are hatched, the worms attack the tassels and bore into the stalk and work downward. Broken tassels are among the first evidences of the presence of the borer in a cornfield. After destroying the stalks and ears, the borer moves down and in winter makes its home in the stubbles.

In a short time, Mr. Sell will identify the worm presented to him by Mr. Miller and report to Mr. Miller.

GREEN BAY BOY RAISES CALF FOR EXHIBITIONS

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Green Bay — Billy Pamperin, route 5, is raising a calf, now 4½ months old, to exhibit in local contests and at the Northeastern Wisconsin fair, this fall.

Billy has had some experience in raising calves and in capturing blue ribbons in open contest as a windup of his work. Last year he raised a calf, displayed it in competition at the local fair and won a blue ribbon and grand champion. He is not sure of equal success this season but he has a good calf, takes good care of it and probably will make his competitors hustle.

Billie is trying to get a calf club started among the boys of his neighborhood. He says he blankets his calf to keep its coat glossy and to protect it from flies; brushes it daily and leads it around the yard for exercise. He feeds his calf five quarts of skim milk twice each day, all the clover and alfalfa hay it will eat and a mixture of two quarts of ground oats, and a little ground barley.

DOESN'T IT GET YOUR GOAT?

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

The long, terrible hours when they thought Cherry would die in giving birth to her baby were the blackest that Faith had ever lived through. Not even those days when she had sat in the courtroom beside the Cherry whom the state was prosecuting as a murderess had been so packed with horror as were the hours during which she sat in the reception room of the hospital, waiting for the word that would tell her whether her adored sister was to live or die. Bob waited with her for long stretches, then charged hatless and wild-eyed and haggard-faced, out into the street, to hide his terror from his wife. She had never felt so helpless in her life. There was absolutely nothing she could do, but pray incoherently.

At eight o'clock Bob forced Faith to go to dinner with him, but she ate almost nothing but strong, black coffee. They had little to say to each other. To Faith, the man sitting opposite her, smoking furiously, his blue eyes narrowed upon the cigaret he held between trembling fingers, seemed a stranger. It was inconceivable that this was her husband. Her husband! The very word sounded strange and alien. Through the agony of her anxiety over Cherry pushed tongues of doubt and suspicion. Of course he was worried about Cherry too. Of course! But if he had been Cherry's husband he could not have looked more stricken.

Never since she had known Bob, except for those three blissful days immediately following their marriage, had she been able to forget that Bob had first loved Cherry, had even been engaged to her for a brief time. Now she felt that she had stolen Bob from her sister, that he, and not the reprobate, Chris Wiley, should have fathered the child that was even now struggling to be born.

"Shall we go?" he asked at last, harshly, abruptly, and she followed him out of the restaurant and back into the hospital where the interminable wait for news went on and on.

Jim Lane and Junior and Fay joined them at nine o'clock. Cherry's father sat, a huddled heap of misery, in an incongruously gay chair, tears slowly slipping down his pallid, sagging cheeks that needed a shave. Fay cried a little, too, sheltered in Junior's arms, but Faith could not weep, and Bob sat as a distance from her, his face turned sharply away, as if he wanted to spare her the sight of his agony.

It was five minutes past one that night when a young interne came hurrying into the reception room, a broad smile on his pink-cheeked face. He paused before Faith, as if he recognized that hers was the greatest anxiety.

"Your sister is the mother of a little daughter, Mrs. Hathaway."

Faith rose and swayed dizzily before Bob could spring forward to support her. "How is—Cherry?" she gasped, her voice sounding small and far away.

"We hope the worst is over," the interne assured her. "But—in cases like this—"

"You don't think she'll get well?" Faith wailed, on a long-drawn note of fear and horror.

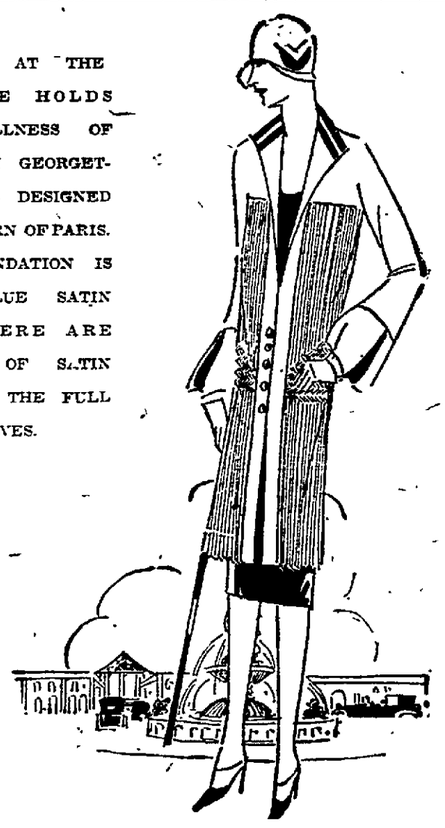

"Of course we hope she will, but she will require the most careful nursing and perfect quiet. She has been in great danger tonight and I don't want to mislead you—"

Bob clasped his wife's sagging body tightly in his arms. His voice rang out loudly, almost roughly: "Don't faint, Faith! Of course she'll get well. Don't you know that nothing can break Cherry?"

Ensembles Are Smart On Swank Beaches And Accessories Gain In Importance

DEAR COUSIN:—Getting myself ready to do a little heavy charming at Biarritz and Lido has occupied my mind for the past few days, and has so depleted my purse that it now achieves the fashionable slenderness with no effort whatever.

It wasn't only the actual water togs, but the accessories that gave me such a hectic week. I found that rubber pearls are exceedingly nifty with any simple outfit, and that you have to hold them in teh hand to realize they are not the usual variety. And I indulged shoulder bouquets of the most woodsy violets, long-petalled chrysanthemums, and waxy gardenias, all made of the finest rubberized cloth, cloth.

There are capes that look exactly like Spanish shawls, with long seductive fringes, and sashes of the most dazzling colors and combinations of color.

Bathing suits are fascinating this year. While I could have been more daring in color and effect, I bought rather conservatively. The ensemble idea prevails everywhere, and my two swimming suits—in which I actually can swim—become much more interesting when worn with their coats. They're almost correct for street wear!

My green jersey suit has two coats, one in pale green taffeta, and the other in green jersey. Thus coated, I can leave my hotel in my swimming togs and play tennis or loll on the beach if I like, and when I am ready for my dip all I need to do is to shed my outer layers.

My other outfit is of black and white wool, with a brilliant red belt, and a sleeveless coat with a striped lining. With it I wear bright red sandals.

I have several bathing caps, all of the very simple round type with a band of rubberized cloth tied closely about the edge as an added protection. I hate water in my ears.

For the Lido, I bought some very colorful pajamas, for one goes about in them all day there. These are much more artful than they seem to be, and have achieved such effects in color and material as I never dreamed were within the human scope.

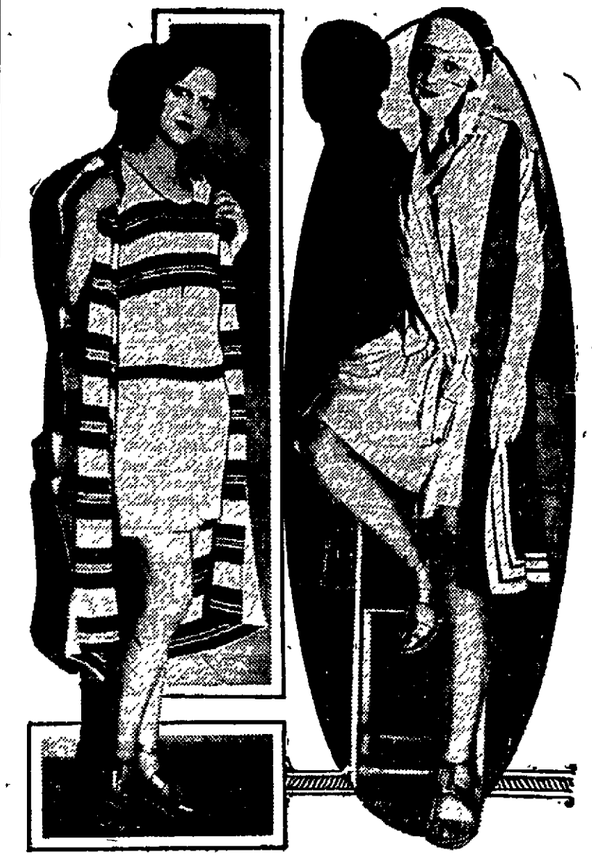

Too pretty for my taste, but very alluring, was one set in silver tissue cloth, lined with pink charmeuse just the color of the lining of a seashell. It should be worn only by the most ethereal blonde, but doubtless some heavy lady embarked on her late middle age will feel she needs it to complete her happiness.

Incidentally I am buying cosmetics for beach use, as they are quite necessary. While I hope to achieve a nice brown sepia finish before I return to Paris, I want it even and smooth, not merely a careless sunburn.

I have creams to rub on before and after my dip, and I have a waterproof powder and rouge that will stay on when artificial respiration has failed. My powders are all the deep yellow and tan shades, and my rouge is a nice Chinese red. I am really very tired of my own coloring, and am ready to do something about it.

Among the accessories, I forgot to mention the new perfumes that are particularly concocted to withstand salt water, and I believe they improve with the contact.

Naturally I am needing other attire before we start, which I shall tell you about next week. The weather here is not conducive to continued effort of any sort, even for one I love as much as you. Anyhow, I dont' want you to become exhausted because I didn't know when to stop. More later—and all my love, GERMAINE.

AT THE LEFT: GERMAINE'S BLACK AND WHITE WOOL BATHING SUIT FROM WORTH, FEATURING RED BELT AND SLEEVELESS COAT OF STRIPED LINING; RIGHT, THE GREEN JERSEY WITH DOUBLE COAT, ONE OF PALE GREEN TAFFETA AND AN OUTER ONE MATCHING THE SUIT.

TOO FAT?

Here's a jury that had a nice job! They sat in on the trial of a portrait painter charged by the lady whom he painted of making her look fatter than she was. The picture was in court, of course, and it was up to the jury to say whether he did her dirt or didn't. It really would probably have been easier to send the lady to the electric chair than acquit the artist. Seriously, though, it's true that it seems psychologically impossible for human beings to really see themselves as others see them. This is especially true of ladies weighed down with too much solid flesh. What a shock we get every time our pictures are taken or we see ourselves in a true mirror, and not the kind of mirrors we like!

THE TINYMITES

THE chocolate hen then clucked a bit. "I think it's going to throw a fit," said Clowny, as he stepped away, perhaps because of fright. He warned the others rapidly. "You'd better hide behind some tree. It wouldn't be so funny if that hen would start to bite."

"Oh, don't be silly," Scouty snapped. "You're scared because its wings were flapped. A hen will never hurt you if you let the thing alone. Shucks, I'm not scared, and I won't go away because I ought to know that hens are very harmless. I once had one of my own."

He walked up very close and then began to stroke the chocolate hen. The bird just settled on the ground, and liked it very much. This made the others shy of fear. They also tip-toed right up near and found the hen was very tame, and very safe to touch.

Said Scouty, "My, what funny legs. I'll bet that she lays chocolate eggs. Perhaps this is the hen that comes around on Easter morn." They wondered why she'd stopped her peep, then found that she was fast asleep. Her head was hanging rather low and she looked quite forlorn.

"Oh, come, wake up," wee Coppy cried. "So you can give us all a ride. We promise we won't hurt you. Gee, a ride would be a treat." The hen then opened up its eyes and promptly seemed to realize just what the Tinies wanted, for she hopped up to her feet.

On jumped the Tinies, one by one. "Oh, my," said Clowny, "this is fun. Let's all be very kind to her, and careful as we can." And, when they all were on her back, no spirit did the brown hen lack. She clucked again, real loudly, and then down the road she ran.

(The Tinymites arrive at Gum Drop Hill in the next story.)

PARISIAN CHEF WORKS, WRITES FOR OTHER COOKS

PARIS—(AP)—The favorite chef of French politicians is Francis Carton, president of the cooks' society of Paris.

In his restaurant opposite the Church of the Madeleine he receives them all, from the Left to the Right, as they come out of the senate or chamber of deputies. They forget their party squabbles over the dishes Carton has a unique way of adorning with cheese, mushrooms and thyme. Herriot becomes benign and Painleve, with a reputation as the most absent-minded of ministers, actually concentrates on what si before him.

Carton, who is 48, comes from the Valley of the Allier near Vichy. As soon as he began to attain fame he devoted homself to bettering the lot of his kitchen-companions. His cooks' society has 5,000 members, with a capital of 6,000,000 francs. The organization pays out large amounts annually to aged or infirm members of the fraternity. It looks after cooks' widows and orphans and provides free medical aid and hospital care.

Carton is the author of a cook-book called "La Cuisine." He also publishes "The Culinary Review," a periodical devoted to gastronomic matters. The department of technical education of France has made him "ambassador extraordinary of French cooking."

He is one of the few first-class chefs who speak English fluently. In order to enable his fellow-workers to cope with the increased tourist trade of France he inaugurated a language school for cooks and waiters.

DON'T CRITICISE COMPLAINING

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

A CONVINCING article about health, and the tendency of people to dramatize their illnesses, lies on my table. The article says that people rather like to be ill.

I do think that people like to discuss their ailments more or less, but I also think there is a huge army of people who suffer greatly and who suffer silently.

I know that there are thousands of women and girls standing up all day or doing other tedious work who are literally "dropping off their feet." They have little time to go to doctors, little time to rest, and many of them dare not take the time for necessary treatment. Every morning sees them in their regular places, "grinning and bearing it." May they not be forgiven if they mention it once in a while to a listener who understands and sympathizes?

There are men in all walks of life with families depending on them, who spend day in and day out, poring over ledgers, practicing professions, and keeping the wheels of business turning, who never know a day free from headache or some other equally distressing pain. The work of the world is not done altogether by well people by any means.

Of one thing I am reasonably sure. The human race, for all its striving has not come to the place where it can think itself entirely well. It may be on the road—that may be the ultimate end and I hope it will be. But for those of us who have not yet adjusted our organizations so that our minds can overcome bodily sufferings, it is small comfort to read and re-read articles critical of those who complain.

As one writer expressed it, "You cannot kill a scarlet fever germ by smiling at it." But more than that. A lot of people would like to forget a headache or a breaking back if they could. It may be their fault that they can't but when they cannot, are they to be censured?

WORKING GIRLS SEEK MARRIAGE

THE other day a man in some town bought a pair of overalls. He found a little note tucked in a pocket. The note said, "If a nice looking, unmarried man between 25 and 35 finds this note, he can write to So-and-So and Such-an-Address." The man got mad at finding his nice new overalls all cluttered up with writing for which he did not bargain, reported his find to the store keeper, who in turn reported it to the manufacturer, and I think the factory girl who wrote the note got fired.

MORE COME-HITHERS

A few days ago I bought a box of picnic plates. Lifting off the plates, when I came to the third one in the pile, I read, "If the guy who eats his cold ham off this here plate wants to get in touch with a nice little cook who can feed him steaks instead of cold boiled ham from the delicates, all he's got to do is write to So and and So at Such an address."

Friends report finding the same yearning, come-hither message written on eggs, on slips of papers inserted in socks and tie boxes, written on the caps of pickle and jam jars, and, in fact, wherever the hand of "the poor working girl" has opportunity to put her message.

SHUN ROMANCE?

Let's see, hasn't there been some little talk about the spurning of matrimony by wage-earning women; the preference they will give the pay envelope to the dish pan, once they have had a taste of independence, etc? The above evidence rather disproves it, doesn't it?

What about the female of the species going out on the war path after a man anyway to be sure obvious wise crack remark to that is that they always have. Maybe yes, but what about the new method of

Defies Age by Using Ordinary Buttermilk to Beautify Complexion

Tells Voigt's Drug Store Not To Take Anyone's Money Unless This Delightful New Vanishing Cream Shows a Decided Improvement

Big Demand for New Package Amazes Druggists

Buttermilk Cream creates beauty almost like magic. The most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the dullest, most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough hands or arms snowy white, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use after application. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the least shininess or greasiness of the skin.

No matter whether you are troubled with a poor complexion, wrinkles, puffiness around the eyes, freckles, crow's feet or lines around the mouth, ugly finger nails, or just a simple roughness of the face, hands or arms caused by wind or sun, you will find that any or all of these troubles will quickly disappear with the use of Howard's Buttermilk Cream.

IMPORTANT: Even the finest face creams fail if the soap you use is harsh. Howard's Buttermilk Cream Soaps keeps skin smooth, soft and pliable.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

The pointer for today is:
AT NO TRUMP THIRD HAND SHOULD PLAY JACK, FROM JACK AND ONE OR MORE SMALL CARDS, ON PARTNER'S King.

Yesterday's Hand

South Declarer, contract one No Trump; what cards should be played to the first trick?

My answer slip reads as follows:

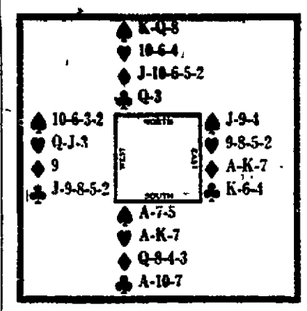

To the first trick West should lead the King of Clubs; North (Dummy) should play the Trey of Clubs; East should play the Jack of Clubs; South (Closed Hand) should play the five of Clubs.

Opening against a No Trump, the King should be led from a suit headed by K-Q-10. If this Club suit had not contained the Ten (for examplee, K-Q-9-8-6) the Eight (fourth best) would have been the lead.

East knows that the King probably was led from K-Q-10 and that the Closed Hand is not apt to win the trick. Should East play any card but the Jack, West will be apt to think that Closed Hand holds A-J because, with A-J-X, Closed Hand probably would play small on the first trick. Consequently West would shift to another suit; whereas, if East play the Jack, it generally will enable West to continue the suit and clear it.

South holds up the Ace of Clubs so as to exhaust East's Clubs before giving up command of the adverse suit. The play will be advantageous if East have the Ace of Diamonds, but with that card in West's hand it is useless.

Today's Hand

South Declarer, contract one No Trump; what four cards should be played to the first trick?

Bridge Answer Slip of July 26th

To the first trick West should lead .....; North (Dummy) should play .....; East should play .....; South (Closed Hand) should play .....

KAUKAUNA BASEBALL TEAM HEADS HIGHER

Les Smith's Squad Optimistic Following Victory on Sunday

Kaukauna—Les Smith's revamped baseball team is booked to take things easy over the weekend but that does not mean that the boys will not get in several nights of practice this week and next. Glaring weaknesses in the infield were shown in Sunday's melee and more than one weakness of brain work cropped out.

The Kaukauna squad has taken a new look at things following Sunday's win and the whole town is beginning to talk baseball and about Smith's war club. The goal set by the fans now is to see the Electric City pulled out of the rut at the bottom of the league and pick up a respectable looking average. That should not be hard for Neenah has won only three games and is just a few points ahead of the Kaws in the percentage column.

The return of "Shorty" Wenzel to Valley baseball as catcher for the local club should solve the receiving problem for some time. Wenzel is a former Appleton catcher and many will remember him as the "short of it" when he was battery mate to "Big Bill" Lathrop. Though he did not come through in a big way with the bat the little fellow is a good sticker and may start clouting them in the next game, scheduled for Green Bay on Aug. 7.

ARMSTRONG FUNERAL HELD AT KAUKAUNA

Kaukauna—The funeral of Thomas W. Armstrong, 69, who died late Saturday night at Green Bay, was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon from the Armstrong home. Mr. Armstrong died of complications following an operation. Survivors are a son, A. R. Armstrong, Kaukauna; a daughter, Mrs. J. E. Vielmetti, Rhinelander; three grandchildren; three sisters — Mrs. Mary Chapman, Leona, Mrs. Charles Pettit, Hollywood, Calif., and Mrs. Jake Empey, Marinette; two brothers, Robert W. of Lena, and Charles of Duck Creek. The services were conducted by the Masonic order, of which Mr. Armstrong was a member.

TAG DAY AT KAUKAUNA HELD BY VOLUNTEERS

Kaukauna—A little more than $78 was collected by the Volunteers of America in their tag day here Saturday. Thirty-seven children were on the streets on both sides of the river tagging people. The work was under direction of Miss Ruth Babler, Mrs. Harry Conkey and Mrs. H. Thompson.

KAUKAUNA STREET WORK WITH TARVIA IS HALTED

Kaukauna—Work of placing tarvia on several streets on the south side has been halted temporarily following the failure of the tarvia to prove successful under the warm weather conditions of the past few days. The trouble has been that the heat has prevented the tarvia from settling properly and most of it is running into the gutters.

Accordingly it was decided to try another grade of the surfacing material on the streets and until then the work has been stopped. The tarvia now on hand will be used on county highway projects.

ACE HUDKINS EARNS NOD OVER SAM BAKER

Los Angeles—(AP)—Displaying a willingness to take dangerous blows in exchange for an opportunity to land his crushing left, Ace Hudkins, "Nebraska Wildcat," outpointed Sergeant Sammy Baker here Monday night and won the decision. A crowd of 35,000 witnessed the fight which saw Hudkins even counts with Baker, who scored a technical knockout in their recent bout in New York. A right to the head that sent Baker to the canvas for a count of nine in the fourth round gave Hudkins the edge, even though the soldier forced Ace down for a count of one in the ninth.

108 Tons Of Elephants Perform In One Act In Worlds Greatest Show

32 PACHYDERMS OF ALL SIZES IN ACT

Grand Finale of Elephant Stunt Is Joint Performance on Pedestal

One hundred and eight tons of elephants in one act!

Such is the net weight of the pachydermic actors that will perform in the new and most stupendous single display ever presented when the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Show exhibit here next Thursday, July 28th.

The total bulk is divided among thirty-two big and little elephants. They perform upon a gigantic pedestal formed of circular stages, one set on top the other. The ground stage measures forty feet in diameter, the next above it, thirty feet. The levels then graduate upward to the pinnacle platform. This mammoth property is so heavy that it has been built in eights. Each time it is erected these segments are made fast together by steel cables laid in groves and tightened with giant turn-screws.

On the circus program, five herds of elephants first perform in five separate rings. At the conclusion of this display other ponderous performers are brought from the menagerie to the hippodrome track. George Denman, the master trainer then summons them, singly and by herd leaders to the huge pedestal.

"Clara!" he calls.

In answer a gray-ears of thirty seasons climbs step by step to the topmost place, eighteen feet above the ground.

"Sammy!"

Samuel, who captains a herd of five fine fellows makes his way to the circular level in ediately below where Clara stands, followed by his comrades. Thus, herd by herd until the entire pyramid swarms with the massive performers. Another command and they are in motion: clockwise on one level, counter clockwise on the next—marching, cavorting, dancing. Meanwhile Clara waves flags that all but graze the big-top roof, as she twirls about, a true ballet queen of the jungle.

Excepting Pawah, the sacred white elephant who is in charge of the far eastern savant, Dr. S. D. Po Min, all the elephants of the Big Show are under George Denman. And of the entire 42 Clara, the "top mounter" in the mammoth pedestal act is among his favorites. He has raised her from a mere "punk" and there is rarely a day when Clara does not come to his private van which stands just outside the menagerie tent to beg for an extra lump of sugar.

LICENSE FOR POWER DAM GETS APPROVAL

Wisconsin Light and Power Company to Construct Big Plant

Notice has been received by Congressman Florian Lampert of Oshkosh that the Wisconsin Light and Power company has been granted a license by the federal power commission to construct a power plant on the Wolf River in Shawano-co just below the Menominee Indian reservation.

Mr. Lampert's office points out that the project is not the one given considerable publicity by opposition that developed through Izaak Walton league chapters and other organizations.

Construction of the dam proposed will "back up the waters of the Wolf river to the falls at Keshena, within the Indian reservation."

The power plant may affect the scenery in the Menominee Indian reservation but such an event is guarded against in the license by clauses that stipulate that the Wisconsin Light and Power company is to "restore, so far as is practicable, all scenic features which may be injured by the construction of the reservoir."

STAGE And SCREEN

"MAN POWER" PROVES TO BE RICHARD DIX' BEST

Richard Dix dug down in his pocket and brought up a winner when he decided to make "Man Power" for Paramount. It arrived at Fischer's Appleton Theatre yesterday and is by all odds the best picture he has ever appeared in.

Directed by the man who has made some of Bebe Daniels' finest pictures, Clarence Badger, adapted by Sam Mintz and Ray Harris from a Byron Morgan story, scenarized by Louise Long, photographed by Ed Cronjager and enacted by a cast which includes Mary Brian and Phillip Strange "Man Power" shapes up as tip-top entertainment for men, women and children.

It is clean, fast, likable melodrama and you'll enjoy all of Daredevil Dix' exploits. You'll cheer as Richard gets his broken-down auto tractor to move and you'll fall in the slough of despair as it fails him at a crucial moment. You'll laugh when Dix vanquishes his villainous rival for Miss Brian's hand and shouts of encouragement will come again and again as Dix finally gets his old machine to start up a perilous, rainsoaked hill in order to reach an overflowing dam in time to save the valley town below. Here are thrills—lots of them!

"Man Power" has lots of that certain something which has always been associated with Dix dramas—speed! It's full of z-zip and verve at each turn of the projection machine. Yes, without a doubt "Man Power" is well worth seeing.

APPLETON LEAGUERS HOST TO GREAT COLORED BALL NINE

Illinois Giants Face Valley Squad At Brandt Park At 5:30 Wednesday

Crowe Expected to Face Crack Colored Nine in Non-league Battle

In spite of a bad beating by the Sheboygan Chairs, class of the W-I League, which they had beaten twice before this year, the Illinois Giants are confident that they are too strong for Fox River Valley League teams and will attempt to make it two straight when they invade the Valley Tuesday and Wednesday. Tuesday afternoon the Giants face Green Bay, at present a leading contender for the Valley honors and Wednesday they invade Brandt park to battle the local nine.

"Dats" Crowe probably will start the game against the Giants with Reffke and Sternagle in reserve for use only in case Dats is pounded extra hard, for Appleton has a double-header carded with Oshkosh Sunday and will need all of its mound talent. The remainder of the lineup probably will be the usual nine, and it will put the boys in good shape for the two tough battles Sunday. Furminger and Eggert will work at first, Tornow at second, Schultz at third, Brautigan and Gosha at short and Hillman, Van Wyck and Baetz in the outer gardens.

The Giants, it has been pointed out, are probably the best colored team in the country today, and have tucked away a number of highly satisfying victories over minor league and ex-big league aggregations.

Baseball fans in Sheboygan clamored for a return game with the Giants after their team met the dark-hued Chicago outfit in a twin engagement, and this tribute is turned in after twenty-seven hundred people paid to see the original Giants perform at Sheboygan.

Due to the fact that the nine which will perform at Brandt park is the original Illinois Giant organization, the Green Sox are expected to have a tough game. No acrobatic errors can be performed if the local players wish to drag off a victory over the invaders, for the Giants are far from the class of the so-called "tramp" colored teams which tour through this section from time to time.

The original Illinois Giants are one of the greatest drawing teams in unorganized ball today, and are certainly head and shoulders above all other colored aggregations in the crowds they attract. One of their recent victories was over the famous Chicago "Black Sox" team, consisting of several outlawed major leaguers, such as Eddie Cicotte, Buck Weaver, Swede Risberg and Happy Felsch.

The Giants have a team that is known to field with machine-like precision, and the lineup is jammed with broad shoulders and heavy bats. One little colored personage named Haley spends his time thinking up ways to torture pitchers, and his most effective system is to hoist the ball over the fence for his team. Haley recently walloped two homers off Everett Scott of Cincinnati, in a game played by the Giants against the Lincoln Lifes, and in addition got three other hits in six times at bat, included in the Lincoln lineup for this game were Scott of Cincinnati, Hargrave of St. Louis Browns, Wambsganns of the Philadelphia Athletics, Miller of Indianapolis A. A. and other major and minor league stars.

The colored team is en route to Duluth, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Superior where they are booked solid for two weeks. The Giants, under the same management, have been in the field for eight years and never have any trouble getting 'return engagements.' This is the best evidence in the world that the Giants play real baseball.

JACK GIVES REASON FOR KEARNS BREAK

Former Heavyweight Champ Says Manager Served Year Term in Prison

Philadelphia—(AP)—Reasons for his break with Jack Kearns are assigned by Jack Dempsey in his answer to a suit by Kearns in federal court here.

Kearns filed suit last September to recover $519,999.99 from Dempsey.

Making a counter claim for $279,226, Dempsey avers in an affidavit that he terminated an oral contract with Kearns because he learned his former manager in 1914 in Kings county, Washington, under the name of McKernan had pleaded guilty and served part of a one year's sentence for a "moral crime," he avers.

"My reputation as a boxer is such as to require me to employ only a person of unimpeachable character as my manager," the affidavit says.

Their oral agreement, the former champion avers, terminated July 28, 1925, when he first learned of Kearns' criminal indictment and turned over to his former manager one half interest in a $300,000 Los Angeles apartment house which Kearns accepted as full settlement.

For Dempsey's fight with Tom Gibbons, Kearns, the affidavit alleges, received $269,500 but kept it all in addition to $15,000 in admissions to exhibitions which they were to have shared equally.

Kearns claims he was to receive 33 1-3 per cent of Dempsey's earnings, under an alleged contract. Dempsey asserts his name was forged by Kearns to this contract and that he did not know of the forgery until the document was discovered by the New York boxing commission and Kearns told him of the forgery. Then, Dempsey says, his former manager begged him to sign the paper and he did so with the understanding that the contract was not enforceable.

PHILS DISSATISFIED, WANT CARLSON BACK

Philadelphia—Before the Phillies boarded a train for St. Louis Monday night Pitcher Tony Kaufmann was indefinitely suspended. Unsatisfactory work was the charge.

President William Baker, it is said, may go before Commissioner Landis, the latter part of the week, and ask for cancellation of the recent trade with the Chicago Cubs which brought Kauffman and Cooney here in exchange for Pitcher Carlson. Kauffmann, dissatisfied with the deal, has failed to win in five starts for the Phillies.

CHICAGO CITY COUNCIL INVITES TITLE SCRAP

Chicago—(AP)—Storms may be brewing in the east over the coming Dempsey-Tunney fight for the heavyweight title, but in Chicago all is fair weather.

The official chorus of Chicago's welcome to Tex Rickard, promoter of the bout now is unanimous and the New Yorker has responded by promising to come here Thursday to settle arrangements for the $2,000,000 affray at Soldiers' field, the latter part of September.

The city council Monday added its invitation to those of the state boxing commission and the park board controlling the stadium. Mayor Thompson telegraphed Richard that George F. Getz, who had offered to qualify as the promoter to comply with the Illinois law, was fully authorized to speak for the mayor.

Getz, the chairman of the mayor's civic affairs committee and a millionaire coal man, Monday received Rickard's acceptance of the invitation to come to Chicago and go over the details of the Chicago offer.

A crippled Freedom team faced the strengthened Manawa squad Sunday in a Wolf River Valley League game at Manawa and proved no match for the new strength, losing a one-sided game, 11-3. Manawa had added the stars of the Waupaca squad of the loop, which recently dropped out and broke up. Eggert, regular Freedom first sacker, was performing with the Appleton Fox River Valley League squad. Freedom has slumped in hitting and the management assures that a general shakeup is the next step.

Roman and Roman worked for Manawa with Tornow, Pingel and Strutz forming the losing battery. The Manawa victory finally tied that crew with Freedom for the league top-notch position, with a 6-4 game mark for each.

In the other games, Shiocton's cellar squad pulled up closer to the third-place Black Creek team by whipping the Creekmen, 7-1. Wall and Pohlman was the losing battery and Krahn and Krahn worked for Shiocton.

Freedom and Shiocton clash next Sunday in a league game at Shiocton. Manawa will be idle and Black Creek will play a long-scheduled exhibition game at Wild Rose.

C. E. Sutherd of Decatur, Ill., former captain of the James Milliken university football team, has been named as the successor to Tom Johnson who recently resigned as coach of the Marinette High school gridiron squad after establishing an enviable record in th Fox River Valley conference for several seasons.

Sutherd is a graduate of the Jacksonville (Ill.) High school, where he played football for four years, and was captain for several seasons, and also the James Milliken university, where he also captained the grid squad during his three-year career as a member of that team.

He has also coached the Westville Township High school team at Westville, Ill., his team winning the Mowhawk Valley championship and being ranked with Moline for state honors. He was asistant coach at James Milliken university for two years when the team lost only to Knox, Bradley, Washington and Loyola.

Tom Johnson becomes coach of the Louisville Male High school way down in Kentucky.

SCHLAFERS LOSERS IN BATTLE AT BAY

Murphy Pitches 6-hit Ball but Bay Man Allows One Less; Score, 6-4

The Schlafer Hardware Co. baseball team traveled to Green Bay Sunday and dropped a tough game to the strong Kelly Club of that city, 6-4. W. Murphy pitched great ball but Hannaway went him a bit better. Murphy allowed six hits, three of which, following a walk in the fifth were turned into three runs. Hannaway allowed but four hits and as many runs. Also getting fourteen strikeouts to Murphy's six. An error in the first frame allowed the Kelly Club to count first and again in the second two more runs came across on an error, a hit and two sacrifices. A walk followed by three alowed them to count three more times in the fifth, and then they went hitless for the rest of the game.

Schlafers didn't score until the sixth when W. Murphy got Schlafers first hit went to second on an error on Kuehnl's hopper and scored when on an overthrow. In the seventh M. Kings single followed by two errors and R. Murphy's double scored three Appleton runs and ended the scoring for the game. Hannaway finished with three straight strikeouts in the ninth. A feature of the game was a fine catch of Adams' drive by P. King, Appleton second sacker in the second, which enabled him to double Boeck off the sack unassisted. The game was one of the best seen at the Bay this year, according to reports.

Next Sunday the Hardwaremen meet the United Stars in a return game on the Wilson high School grounds. The Schlafer's will be out for revenge as they took a drubbing earlier in the season.

Tilden's victories and the bye put him a step ahead of the field, none of the other entries getting beyond their second matches. Wray Brown of St. Louis won both of his easily, and so did Junior Coen of Kansas City, and Emmett Pare, Chicago.

BRUINS ARE IDLE, BUT TAKE LOOP LEAD

Homer by Andy Reese Gives Giants 1-0 Victory Over Pirate Star's

The National League's race for first place showed the Chicago Cubs back on top again Tuesday. All Joe McCarthy's boys had to do to regain the lead was to keep away from the ball field. Andy Reese, third baseman of the New York Giants, contributed to the cause by spanking a home run in the seventh inning against the Pittsburg Pirates. The homer proved to be the only run of the game.

The mad rush of the Cincinnati Reds carried the team furtehr toward the top of the second division. Jack Hendricks' men dropped the St. Louis Cardinals twice in a double header. They won the first 3-2 in 10 innings, and took the second 4-3 by a four run rally in the seventh.

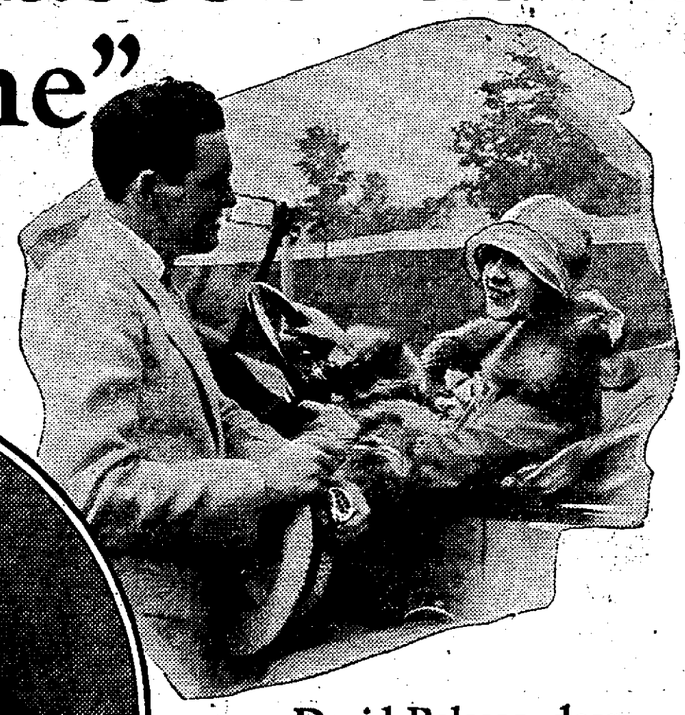

The Detroit-Philadelphia game furnished the lion's share of the American League excitement. Jimmy Dykes knocked out a home run in the thirteenth that gave the Mackmen a 6-5 victory. Philadelphia fought an uphill battle, tying the score in the ninth. Wheat's great catches in the tenth and thirteenth saved the game.

Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox engaged in a free scoring game, the Sox winning 10-7.

Philadelphia —(AP)— Billy Wallace, Cleveland, defeated Tommy Herman, Philadelphia (10).

"David Belasco's advice impressed me"

Walter J. Leather is telling Joyce Todd as they start for an all-day motor jaunt through the Berkshires.

David Belasco, dean of the American Theatre, writes:

"The voice is to the actor what the chisel is to the sculptor. He must beware of dulling its qualities. Naturally I am vitally concerned about the voices of my players, so I always advise the one cigarette that I discovered many years ago that does not impair control of the subtlest vocal shadings or cause huskiness or harshness. I mean the 'Lucky Strike.' It is the player's best friend."

David Belasco

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

BIG TEN COACHES ARGUE GRID SHIFT

Stanford Mentor Against Move, While Minnesota Man Defends It

Superior—(AP)—A football debate on the question, "Is the shift worth while?" was held before the members of the Kiwanis coaching school here.

Glen S. "Pop" Warner, Leland Stanford coach, represented the negative side and Dr. Clarence W. Spears, University of Minnesota football coach, took the affirmative. No decision was cast as to the winner.

Coach Warner, who piloted the western team through a perfect season last fall, said that one outstanding factor that showed the shift was not necessary and not to be compared with the set formation, was that four university teams not using the shift, went through the 1926 season undefeated. The teams cited were Leland Stanford, Brown, Lafayette and the University of Alabama.

"Many of the better teams in the country don't use the shift and many of the outstanding coaches don't believe in it," the western coach declared. The Navy gridiron team which has been voted for its outstanding football squads for many years, does not advocate the shift," he pointed out.

"There is no value in the shift unless it is played illegally. If the players come to a stop there is no more advantage in this than there would be from the set formation. There are so many phases for the coach to teach his men in the tactics of football. In order to perfect the shift accurately it requires a great deal of time which could be used advantageously in other ways.

"I claim it is not as good as a set formation because the players are not 'dug in' as much. It is harder for a shifting team to handle the opponents on move as they will not be in the same position that they would be if shift play was in use."

When called to give his opinion in the shift, which he advocates, Dr. Spears explained that the object of the shift is not for momentum but to deceive the enemy as to the formation to be used. He said that by quickly shifting the opposing team would be delayed in adjusting themselves to meet the play.

He demonstrated that the shift was not clumsy as claimed by some coaches and showed how either the hop into the shift or the cross step could be readily executed in the formation of the shift. He declared that the shift was an effective weapon for offensive work.

SAILBOATS IN ANNUAL RACE BEHIND RECORD

Chicago— (AP) —The 30 sail boats, coasting along the eastern beach of Lake Michigan in the twentieth annual Chicago to Mackinac cruise, were nearing their goal Tuesday, nearly two days behind the record time for the 331 mile race.

Last reports were that Joyant, a Class P sloop, had a two-mile lead over Intrepid, last year's winner, less than a 100 miles from the goal. The yachts started from Chicago at 4 Saturday afternoon with little hope of breaking the 28-hour record because of sluggish winds.

This year the Lake Michigan fleet is competing with the Detroit fleet which started up Lake Huron from Port Huron at the same time.

Chickering
ESTABLISHED 1823

IN 1837, when the free teaching of music was introduced into the Boston Public Schools, it was the Chickering that was selected as the piano for this undertaking.

Just as the Chickering was chosen in that bygone time as the finest piano for an important work, so has it been chosen all through the years by the most cultivated people and by the finest artists. And today such marvelous pianists as Dohnányi, Lhevinne, Schnitzer and many others will use only the Chickering.

Yet, when the Chickering is made in a size small enough to suit your living-room, you will find the same wonderful qualities that are heard in the mighty instrument whose voice has charmed countless thousands from the concert stage.

JACK LOCKWILL'S POLICE DOG

"You sneaking cub!" Benton roared, striking at Lockwill with the chair. Jack dodged barely in time. Then, with the man thrown off his balance by the force of the wasted blow, the boy plunged forward, caught him round the waist, backheeled him deftly, and sent him to the floor with a crash that shook the wretched building. "Jimminy!" gasped the admiring girl. "Ain't he a bear!"

The astonished rascal scrambled up, reaching for his hip-pocket as he was rising. With a cry of warning, the girl grabbed his wrist as he was drawing a pistol.

Only for the action of Molly Dugan, the treacherous chauffeur might have shot Jack down. The boy sprang forward again, and smashed Benton on the chin.

Staggered by the blow and forced to defend himself, the man dropped his pistol and swung the clinging girl between himself and Lockwill as the latter struck again. Hit by Jack, she let go and dropped in a crumpled heap. Jack was dismayed by what he had done. As the boy hesitated, staring down at Molly, Benton took him off guard and hurled him backward. THE LEADER IN USED CAR VALUES

The prices set by Gibson on used cars are the standard of comparison for other dealers. Occasionally some of their automobiles are marked as low as Gibson's but never lower. A consistent policy of rock bottom prices, a varied selection of good used cars, and Gibson's reputation, all contribute toward making Gibson the dominant leader.

S. AMERICAN FLIGHT HAS MANY HANDICAPS

Brunswick-Rio De Janeiro Jaunt Harder Than Atlantic Journey

Brunswick, Ga.—(AP)—Paul Redfern in his proposed flight from Brunswick to Rio de Janeiro across the Caribbean sea, "from the point of view of the weather likely to be encountered will have a far more difficult task to perform than crossing the Pacific or the Atlantic," declares C. F. von Herrmann, government meteorologist at Atlanta.

"He will encounter either opposing currents or strong winds from an easterly direction which will tend to make the airplane drift strongly toward the right, or toward the interior of the continents," von Herrman says in a study of the weather the young flier is likely to encounter.

FREQUENT HURRICANES

"In addition, he will have to cross a region where tropical hurricanes are frequent, and the doldrums which are characterized by severe thunderstorms and baffling winds.

"Both these classes of storms are formed between the two permanent areas of high pressure in the Atlantic about the latitudes of 30 degrees north and south of the equator. Tropical storms during July and August are mostly formed between Cape Verde Islands and ocean just east of Porto Rico, whence they are carried by the prevailing winds into the Carribbean, or across Cuba. Fortunately, they are rather uncommon in July, though they increase rapidly in frequency in August. Northeastern South America and the entire region of the Amazon river have heavy summer rains.

"Immediately on leaving Brunswick moderate opposing winds are likely to be encountered, but by the time the aviator reaches Cuba, the northeast to easterly trade winds will prevail with gradually increasing strength, blowing directly across the line of travel and tending to force the airplane toward Yucatan and Panama.

BAFFLING AIR POCKETS

"These cross winds he will continue to encounter both at the surface and at the usual flying altitudes until he has entered the main South American continent and is approaching the equator.

"Here, for perhaps 5 to 10 degrees of latitude, baffling winds will be encountered with air pockets, extending to great altitudes, and probably thunderstorms.

"After crossing the equator and heading southeast toward Rio de Janeiro, Redfern will encounter strong southeast trade winds at almost all possible flying altitudes. These will cause a right-hand drift toward the Andes mountains over the trackless forest of the Amazon.

"However, as he finally approaches Rio de Janeido conditions will materially improve, the winds will diminish, though still opposing flight. Thunderstorms will become less frequent and good flying weather will prevail."

HIGHWAY ENGINEERS MEET IN MADISON

Road Builders Get Together to Study Problems of Their Work

Madison—(AP)—The men who have charge of building Wisconsin's highways convene here Wednesday for the state Highway Commission's semi-annual engineers' conference.

Division engineers, engineers of the main office of the commission and members of the commission will attend the three-day meeting.

It is the practice of the commission to call into conference twice annually at Madison its nine division engineers and general staff engineers for the purpose of discussig new phases and problems in highway construction and maintenance work.

The engineers will convene Wednesday morning in the commission hearing room and divide into groups. Each group will be assigned a study subject. After such assignment each group will discuss and seek a solution of the problem assigned. The groups will then bring into a general assembly their reports and findings and the assembly will hold a general discussion on each subject.

Each division engineer and engineer of the general staff is expected to come to Madison prepared with questions or bothersome problems for discussion and possible solution.

WOODEN PIPES, EARLY DAY MEMENTO, FOUND

Beaver Dam—(AP)—Another historical relic has been added to local collections of mementoes of earlier days at Beaver Dam.

An early day public improvement has been unearthed. Workmen of the power and light company, working on new pipe trenches found portions of an old wooden pipe line that some of the older residents of the city say was at one time used to carry water from the old Mackie spring to the plant of the old woolen mill. The mill site is now occupied by a cheese factory.

They declared that when the woolen mill was opened, in 1853, water from the river was used in washing and scouring the wool, but that the odor of the river water permeated the wool. It was impossible to remove this odor by any means than available so the only remedy found was change in the water supply.

So the mill owners laid a pipe line to the springs and used pure spring water for washing their raw materials.

The water conduit was a 12-inch pipe made from strips of wood, locked together much like an elongated barrel, with iron bands. The old settlers here think that the line was laid some time in the eighteen-fifties.

PLENTY OF PEOPLE WANT LAWMAKERS TO END THEIR SESSION

About the Only Ones Satisfied With Long Meetings Are Hotel Keepers

Madison —(AP)— Here is a list of those who are waiting for the legislature to adjourn and the reason they hope to see an end of legislation this week:

Governor Zimmerman:-With cessation of the session he will not have to worry about signing bills in time, conferring with administration floor leaders and listening to the queries of newspaper men about the various actions of the legislature.

Dr. Clenn Frank, president of the state university: He wants his vacation, but can not go away until, in these last days of 1927 legislating, the senate and assembly pass the University appropriation bill and he confers with the other college heads to make on next year's budget from the amounts allowed by the legislature.

Hundreds of heads of Wisconsin livestock:-They want their masters, the farmer-members of the legislature.

Scores of up-state business and professional helpers:-They want their "Bosses," now legislating in Madison, to come back and reassume the managerial duties in stores and offices.

At least 133 families over Wisconsin:-They want their fathers or brothers to return for the family vacation and mid-summer duties.

A score of newspapermen:-They have been in the legislative halls each day except week-ends, holding better attendance records than some of the legislators themselves. They await the end of almost seven months of discussion, debate, drone of clerk's monotone reading, and investigation, to transfer to new news fields, go on vacations and settle to routine of capitol "coverage."

As many office-holders in the capitol:- They were moved out of rooms in the Capitol to make room for the committees of the legislature and want back their old offices.

An unknown number of Wisconsin citizens:- They want to summarize the new laws and see if they have to pay any more tax, if their company can build a new dam or operate a new bus line, if they can do this or that without violating a law.

Those who do not care when session ends are mostly in two groups—the employes of the two houses who are compensated on a per diem basis and the hotel men and room-renters who had 133 renters since January.

WINE, BEER AND OTHERS

Supplies sufficient to provide refreshments for four days were trucked the thirty odd miles from La Tuque. Many gallons of red and white wine, beer and other beverages were included for the big party.

As the hour for the wedding approached all rumors of family strife had vanished. Lena went down to La Tuque, Monday, to bid farewell to the home where her mother and six sisters have been living since last fall. She planned to return with them for the ceremony.

"Bud" plans to take his bride abroad. On their return he plans to begin his peparation for a medical career.

DIVIDES FORTUNE

New York — (AP) — The New York American in a dispatch from Grand Anse, Quebec, Tuesday, says Bud Stillman has bestowed one half his inheritance upon Lena Wilson.

The inheritance came to young Stillman from his paternal grandfather in the form of a trust fund and is estimated at $2,500,000. This fortune is independent of the property of his father, which is estimated at $50,000,000.

ARRANGE INTERCITY NET MATCH WITH KAUKAUNA

Arrangements will be completed Wednesday or Thursday by A. P. Pensen, physical director of the Y. M. C. A. for an inter-city tennis match between Appleton and Kaukauna tennis clubs. Two doubles and two or three singles matches will be played. The probable Appleton players will be Dr. R. V. Landis, president of the local club, John Catlin, Harold Johnson and Prof. W. E. Rogers.

Mr. Jensen also will start plans this week for the annual state tournament of the Y. M. C. A. State association officials have notified him that Appleton has been selected for the 1927 meet which will be held late in August.

OVER 2,000,000 GALLONS OF WATER USED MONDAY

Water pumped by the city water department Monday was only 200,000 gallons less than was used by the city on June 29, when the largest quantity was pumped, according to A. J. Hall, superintendent of the water works station. The total pumpage Monday was 2,140,000 gallons and on June 29 the pumpage was 2,350,000 gallons.

MOTOR BOATS RACE

Two Appleton boating enthusiasts engaged in a new competition Monday evening on the Fox river near Stroebers island. Charles Sparling challenged Wilmer Schaler, Jr., to battle of boats with attached motors. The boat piloted by Schlafer captured a two-mile race by about a quarter mile.

FARMER BADLY HURT WHEN HORSES DRAG HIM UNDER WAGON

John Ellenbecker in Critical Condition in Hospital—Asylum Inmate Hurt

Two farm accidents Tuesday morning resulted in injuries to two, one of whom is in a critical condition.

John Ellenbecker, 53, was seriously injured Monday morning while at work on his farm west of Appleton. He had hitched a team to a wagon load of wood and the horses became frightened when some of the wood fell from the top of the wagon. Ellenbecker was thrown from his seat and dragged along the ground for some distance. The extent of his injuries has not been determined because of his serious condition.

John Durkee, 52, an inmate at the county asylum, received minor injuries when he was kicked by a horse while doing farm work. He was cut around his legs and chest.

N. Moder of Route 1, Dale, is in a critical condition and not expected to recover as the result of an accident early Monday morning near Dale.

Officer Gus Hersekorn of the Appleton police department is recovering from injuries suffered late Saturday afternoon when thrown from his motorcycle in a collision in Menasha. Delegates to the Aid Association of Lutherans' convention, which Hersekorn was escorting on a sight-seeing tour, took up a $25 collection and presented it to the policeman.

BOLDT ATTENDS PICNIC AT GREEN BAY BEACH

Martin Boldt was the only Appleton man at the picnic given at Bay beach at Green Bay Saturday by the Green Bay contractors. Those in business here and in several other cities in the Fox river valley were invited to the affair. Several Neenah men attended.

Games, horseshoe tournaments, ball games and contests for women and children were arranged. The picnic was an all day event and was well attended.

COUNTY FARMERS START HARVESTING SMALL GRAIN

Farmers in the vicinity of Appleton have started to harvest barley, winter wheat and rye, according to Robert Amundson, county agent. Haying probably will be completed this week.

The corn crop, which was very poor earlier in the summer, now is improving due to the warm weather and is almost normal. Pastures are in good condition and farm house lawns no longer appear to be dried-up but are quite green.

Markets

STOCK PRICES MOVE IN NARROW LIMITS

Some Slight Gains Shown and a Few Register Slight Drops

New York—(AP)—Stock prices moved within narrow and irregular limits at the opening of Tuesday's market. Continental Insurance opened a point higher at 191, a new peak, and the American Steel Foundries recorded a new top at 53½. Baldwin and General Motors improved fractionally on initial sales but United Drug and Montana power registered slight recessions.

Heavy profit taking and bear selling impeded the efforts of speculators for the advance who based their campaign on easy credit conditions and the prospect of good fall business. Steel shares were in brisk demand.

Early selling was most effective in the high priced specialties such as United States Cast Iron Pipe, Case Threshing Machine and Commercial Solvents B. Rails received fairly good support, Union Pacific climbing to a new peak price.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with edemand sterling quoted around $4.85⅛ and French francs around 3.91 cents.

Profit taking sales which came into the market from time to time were well absorbed and operators for the rise brought out new leaders in an effort to maintain bullish enthusiasm. Motors were particularly active, especially⅛ly medium and low priced shares, Chrysler getting up to a new high of 54 and Willys-Overland, Studebaker and Nash gaining briskly. Rails developed fresh activity round noon and United States Steel again touched a new high at 125⅜. Call money was renewed at 4 per cent.

The closing was steady. Total sales approximated 1,551,000 shares.

DEFECTIVE TONSILS FOUND COMMON IN SCHOOLS OF CITY

Thirty Improperly Nourished Children Found Among 564 Examined

Tonsilar defects were found in 176 children in the Appleton grade schools during the month of June, according to the report made by Miss Mary E. Orbison and Miss Jane Barclay, city school nurses. Defects of the teeth were next in number with 130 and 86 children with nasal breathing were reported. Thirty malnourished pupils were found, and 37 had bad posture. Defective thyroid glands were found in 47 children and 33 had cervical glands.

Defects of the heart were reported for 16 boys and girls. One case of defective hearing was reported, two of defective eyes, and six of poor vision. Two tonsilar cases were corrected. There were ten cases of skin disease such as rash or sores.

Most of the schools were closed shortly after June 1, but th parochial schools were open and physical examinations by physicians in the city were continued in these schools. There were 564 pupils examined and notices of doctors' reports were sent to parents. The number enroiled during June was 2,886. Four schools were visited a total of 13 times. Five cases of anemia were found. Miss Orbison was attending the Institute of Public Health Nursing at Milwaukee for two weeks and Miss Barclay continued the work alone.

Only two cases of infectious disease were reported. Both of these were chicken pox. No contagious diseases were found. One orthopedic case, two other surgical and one undiagnosed case were reported. Two patients were accompanied to the hospital and two were given social service. Instruction was given for correction of defects for 18 children under six years, 159 for those from six to 16 years, and one for 16 years or over.

Twenty-four office interviews were held and 78 telephone calls were made. Six letters and pamphlets were sent and three interviews not specified elsewhere in the report were held.

After two years of at least partial idleness, workers in linen mills of Northern Ireland are being kept busy nearly all of the time.

CONSTANT INCREASE IN CALLS FOR BOOKS

Madison—(AP)— Summarizing the service rendered by the state's traveling library department, sponsored by the library commission, Miss Harriet C. Long in charge of the work Tuesday reported that 166,484 volumes had been issued in answer to 27,480 requests during the past year.

The totals represent requests from individuals, schools and libraries over the state. The individual requests alone constituted the greater part of the total, since 24,907 were received.

Statistics for the last seven years have also been compiled by Miss Long with a view to showing the increase in demand for books. In 1920 and 1921, 100,246 volumes were issued upon 13,860 requests. In 1925-26, the number was 161,861 and 26,185 requests. The table shows a constant increase.

FORMER MILLIONAIRE FACING PRISON TERM

Pennsylvania Coal Baron Penniless After Crash of Fortunes

By NEA Srvice

Uniontown, Pa.—A sum that Josiah V. Thompson in days or not so long ago would have regarded as cigar money now threatens to send this man, formerly the world's greatest coal baron, to prison.

The story of Josiah V. Thompson, now well up in years, is one that is as romantic as the Pennsylvania coal fields in which he built up the millions that led him to the reputation of being the coal king of the world.

BEGAN AS POOR BOY

Thompson, like a lot of men who have become millionaires, was once a poor boy. In the same field where the late Henry Clay Frick piled up his many millions as a coke manufacturer, Thompson built up his fortune as a coal baron. At first his coal holdings were quite small, but with the first money he made he bought more and more coal land.

Thompson grew powerful politically even as he grew powerful financially. Life savings were entrusted to him for investment and he was made the trustee of many estates because his wisdom in fiances was sworn by. And in many cases he made money—much money—for those who trusted him.

WHEN COAL HIT SLUMP

About twelve years ago, however, there came a slump in the coal business. Thompson had much paper outstanding. He was really property poor. Eventually he was unable to meet his obligations and receivership proceedings were instituted.

The bank that was rated A-1 broke. Thousands of depositors were the innocent victims of the crash.

It was believed for a time that out of the wreck of his great venture in coal he would come off still a wealthy man, but recently a court order was given requiring him to pay an estate the sum of $145,000.

And Thompson, in answer to the suit, has told the court that he is without funds and unable to meet the demand.

Thus, Thmopson, once all-powerful, faces prison bars. The man who once was worth 70 millions, now can't find $145,000.

IMPRESSIVE PAGEANT STAGED BY INDIANS

Kilbourn—(AP)—The annual Indian pageant, which has attracted tourists from all parts of the country and from foreign shores, is being held again this year in the dells of the Wisconsin river near here.

Started about eight years ago by the Winnebago Indians, the pageant has been improved, beautified and made more impressive each year. The original Americans planned the pageant so that their white brothers might, for a fee, see their tribal rites and Indian "atmosphere," after a boat ride from the landing here to the ceremonial grounds near Standing Rock.

This year other tribes besides the Winnebagos are participating and the pageant is said to have been made still more attractive to the tourist. It is started about July 1 and continues until September 5.

The pageant grounds are illuminated by powerful electric search lights, and the cliffs are transformed by colored lights.

SHIPPING BOARD TO HAVE FAIR EXHIBIT

Milwaukee—(AP)—The United States shipping board will have an interesting exhibit at the Wisconsin State Fair, August 29 to September 3 with the view of arousing interest in the American merchant marine.

Maps showing the various trade routes of the merchant marine, ship models and moving pictures make up a part of the exhibit.

Belts and Novel Imported Weaves Distinguish Early Fall Coats

A coat from this group of new Fall models would be useful not only for wear this autumn but as a travel coat to be taken on one's summer vacation journeyings. Of smooth, soft fabric in camels hair and the fine imported woolens in beautiful tones of tan and brown or more striking combinations of black and white. Straight lines continue to be good, and shawl collars of fox, ringtail opossum and other long-haired furs predominate. Linings of crepe de chine or heavy satin harmonize with the color of the fabrics. Tailored enough to be swagger without being mannish.
